Carmel Valley Master Plan

EIR recommends restrictions on development

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A NEW quota system that will further restrict building in Carmel Valley is one of the keynote features in the draft subsequent environmental impact report for the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan.

The just-released subsequent EIR recommends that the county allow only 900 new lots of record — and a maximum of 45 annually — to be developed in Carmel Valley over the next 20 years compared to 1,181 units proposed in the 1982 master plan.

The proposed building restrictions will not affect the approximately 615 current lots of record and 250 units planned in special exempted projects, such as Carmel Valley Ranch.

At full buildout in the next 20 years there would be 1,765 new units allowed in Carmel Valley, under the master plan guidelines.

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman has scheduled an informational session on the draft Carmel Valley Master Plan subsequent EIR for 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 16 in the community center off Ford Road.

Copies of the 100-page draft subsequent EIR developed by Gloria Root and Associates are available for public review in the Carmel Valley, Carmel, Monterey and Salinas libraries.

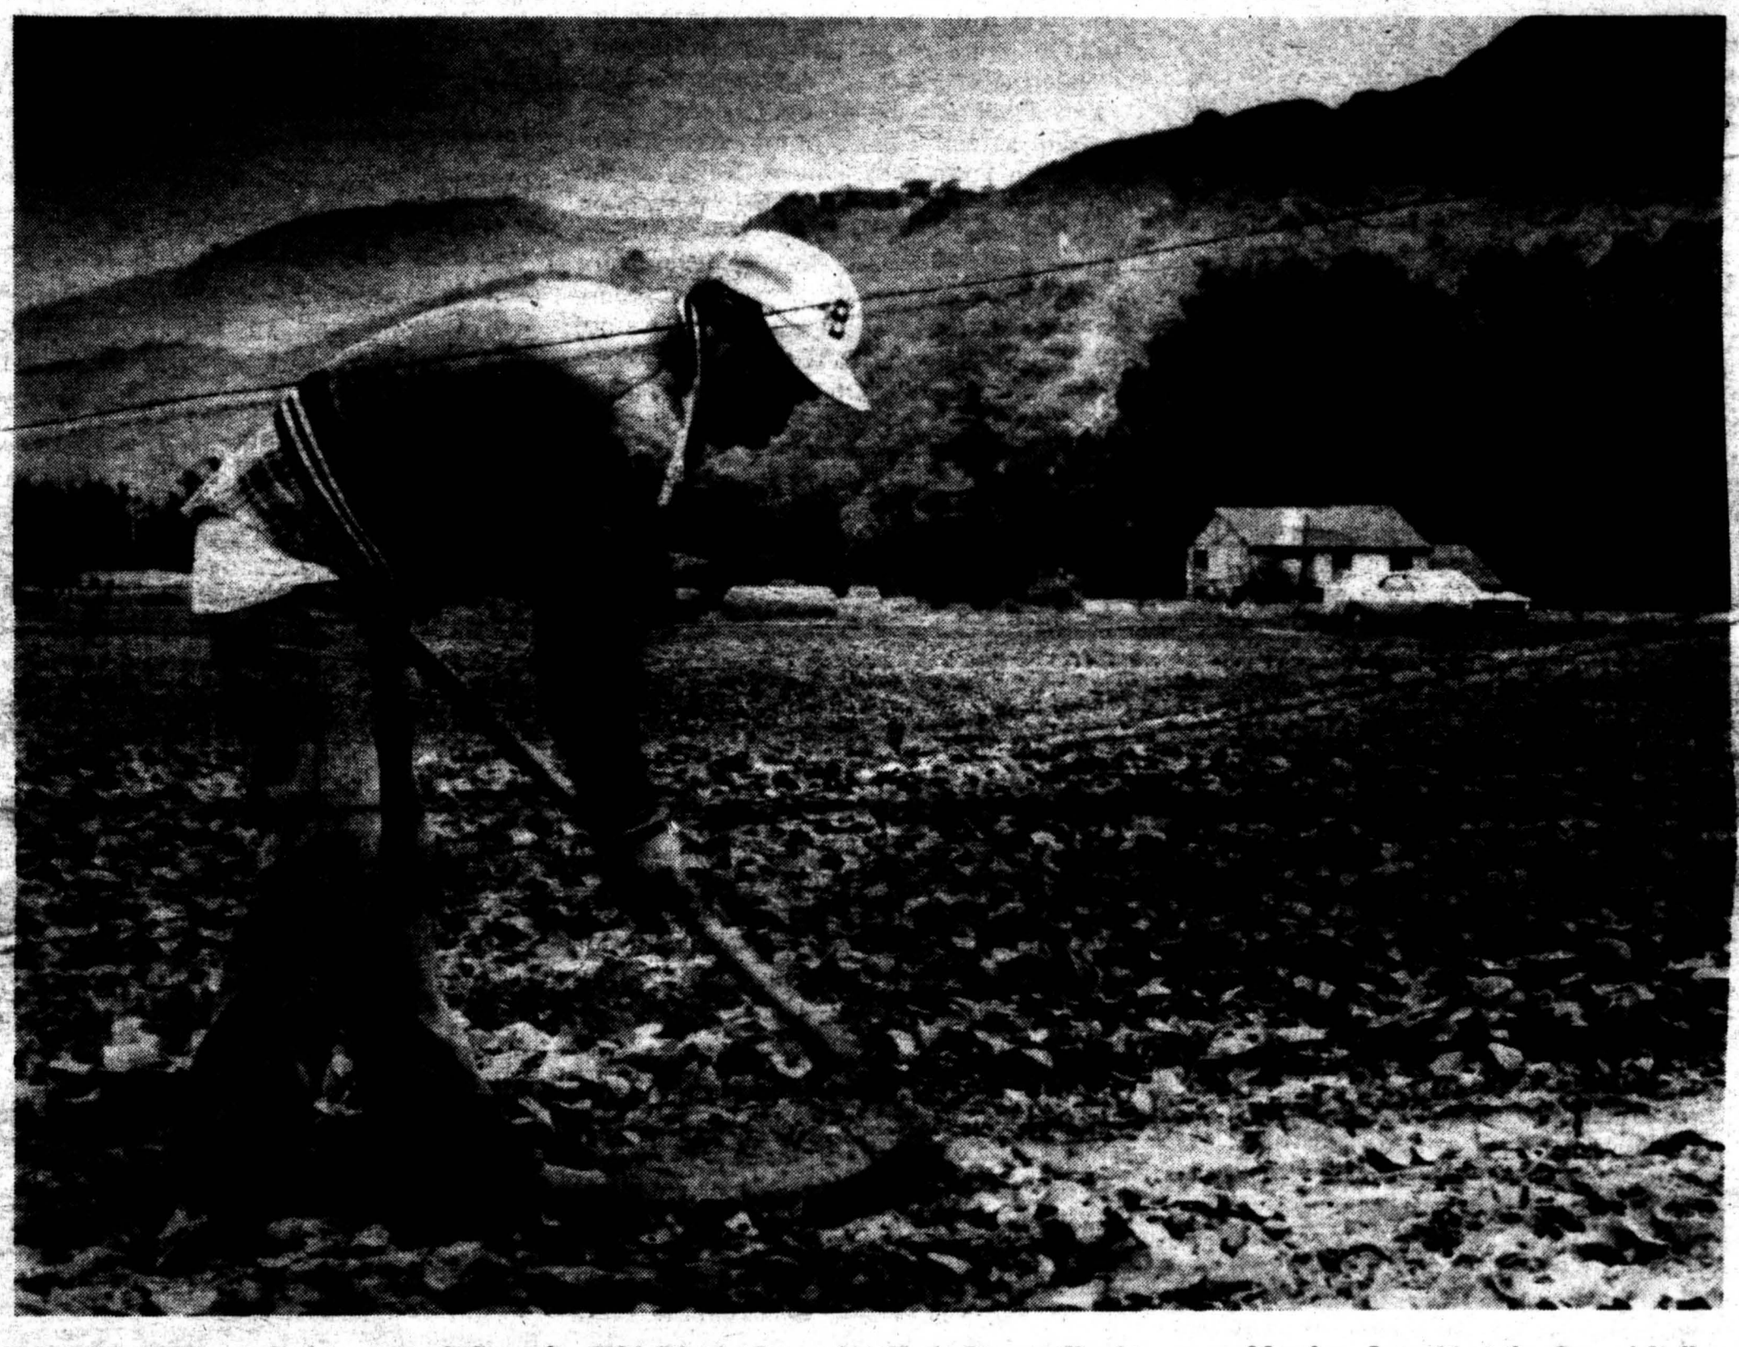
Written comments on the EIR are to be received by the county planning department by July 10.

The latest EIR has been prepared in response to a 1984 decision by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver, who sided with the city of Carmel in its lawsuit contending that the county master plan does not adequately protect the environment or consider the effects building will have on existing sewer, water and traffic constraints.

Silver in 1979 had issued a moratorium on the issuance of discretionary building permits — again in response to a city of Carmel lawsuit.

Except for the commercial building at the mouth of the Valley and at mid-Valley, the moratorium has effectively halted most new subdivisions save for those approved prior to Silver's decision.

Once adopted by supervisors — an action expected in December — the county will have to petition Silver to certify the plan and EIR and lift his discretionary use permit moratorium.



SAVING THE rural character of Carmel Valley is one of the primary objectives of the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan and its accompanying environmental impact report. Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman will sponsor an informational meeting on the master plan EIR scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 16 at the Carmel Valley Community Center off Ford Road. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Some of the key provisions in the 1986 draft EIR are:

- A plan to allow only 900 new lots of record in the next 20 years to be built at the rate of just 45 annually.
- The continuance of a subdivision evaluation system that will determine which projects will be developed based on issues related to "land use, visual resources, biological resources and hazards."
- Keeping the Odello East development within the master plan planning area, thus making it subject to the allocation system.

•

HOWEVER, the EIR would include a policy supporting the proposed flood mitigation project planned as part of the Odello development.

- Adopt a policy in support of the proposed San Clemente Dam and to encourage reclamation projects.
- Development on hillsides "shall be strictly limited to that which can be successfully screened."
- Development at lower evaluations "shall be given preference over other allocations as a means of preserving rural and visual quality."

They deserved better

Dear Editor:

As a resident of Carmel-by-the-Sea I am concerned about the legal process that has been used to fire the seated Carmel Planning Commissioners. In my opinion, Mayor Clint Eastwood has an obligation to explain how he has not violated the Ralph M. Brown Act. We deserve an explanation for the rash and unconsidered process used to terminate and replace members of the planning body.

Our law specifies the proper method for termination actions and subsequent vacancies. First, he must have a 3-2 majority vote on the city council to do so. The only way that Eastwood could have known how the council was to vote on his proposed action to fire the commission members was to poll them. Assured that he had the votes, he prematurely announced his intentions, either unaware or uncaring that the secret decision had been made outside the public forum.

The proper procedure, once there were vacant commission seats, should have been a public posting of the vacancies for a period of not less than 20 days. This is to allow individuals and groups to propose potential members for the vacancies. This procedure was ignored. There was no chance for interested members of the public to know of the vacancies, much less apply.

Instead, Eastwood fabricated a false emergency condition and rammed his new appointments through the council. Remember, these new appointments were announced a full week before the council meeting. Again, it appears that the facts indicate that he probably knew ahead of time what the decision of the council was going to be.

I think the community must be concerned about the secret decisions, the failure to follow legal procedure, and the bending of the law to expedite the will of Mayor Eastwood and his hidden agenda. This is particularly onerous because Eastwood attacked the former mayor so brutally for the same style of government.

It is the intent of the law that the council actions be taken openly and that their deliberations be conducted openly. The people of this city do not yield their sovereignty to the council that serves them. The people of Carmel, in delegating their authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is not good for them to know. The people insist on remaining informed so that they may retain control over the instruments they have created.

I know that there is an anxiety and a concern about the future of our city when council members (Eastwood, Fisher, and Laiolo) have possibly broken their oath of office to uphold the law and protect the rights of the citizens whom they serve.

This criticism is not directed at what Eastwood did. He has the authority and the mandate to effect changes. It was the arrogance and callousness with which he did it that disturbs me.

I personally thank those castaway members of the Carmel Planning Commission who have served this community so faithfully. I am proud of the time you took to do a thankless job, of the public service that you rendered, of your commitment, your dedication, and your love of Carmel-by-the-Sea. It is recognized. You deserved better.

In the name of Bach

Dear Editor:

I have really enjoyed singing in the Carmel Bach Festival for several years, and I am going to really miss being one of the tenors in this year's Bach Festival in July. I remember when the Bach performances first started and they couldn't afford to give the singers any money for their time and efforts which have made the Bach Festival the wonderful event and tourist attraction it is now in Carmel. The Bach singers really deserve much more than they are getting now. Last year the singers got about $1,500 ($1,000 plus $500 housing allowance), which is hardly anything when you think about all the work that they have to put into it.

I really can't complain about not being chosen for this year's performances, because I really got a lot of political attention for taking a political stand against the Spanish Bay hotel development. This has had an obvious effect on the musicians involved with the Bach Festival, and I must say that they are still, in spite of the new investors, just wonderful people and I'm sure that the Bach Festival will be a big success this year.

I will certainly remember my experiences in the Bach Festival as a warm feeling in the future when I hear the live performances on the radio and on TV. To leave is to return, and to be left out of the Bach Festival is a not unwarranted sacrifice on my part. Bach is my favorite composer and I have learned more from the Bach rehearsals about Bach, than from any other educational experiences in my life.

In spite of all the horseplay that goes on in the existing cultural echelons of Carmel's social groups, I am nevertheless undaunted, because it is only history repeating itself in the name of Bach.

A sad note

Dear Editor:

I find it sad to note the Friends of Photography has decided to relocate to San Francisco.

As a local and proud of my family's participation in the preservation of Pt. Lobos, I had crossed my fingers that when Friends of Photography came to look at our family ranch owned and built by A. M. Allan himself (my grandfather) they found it unsuitable for their needs.

Most avid Monterey Herald readers were made aware of our struggle to have the family property become part of the Pt. Lobos State Reserve only to become entangled in legal pursuit by a developer whose intent is to build a lodge on the same site. Quietly but insistently, this developer is continuing his quest for money and development on a historic landmark.

So, "Friends" come and go but hotel and excess traffic will only increase should developers remain.

I hope with our new mayor in office, he will be able to help keep our historic sites in and around Mission Ranch and Pt. Lobos for our pleasure and not for the benefit of the wealthy.

Marriage on the rocks

Dear Editor:

The other night I settled comfortably in my easy chair to watch the baseball game on the telly. My wife walked in and mentioned that she had played baseball at the Oakland high school which we had both attended. I hadn't known that, but it was a pleasant surprise. Something else we had in common and we could enjoy the game together.

"Tonight the Cardinals and the Blue Jays are playing an exhibition game," I reminded her.

"That's going to be cute," she said: "I didn't know that birds could play baseball."

"Yeah," I said. "Well, let's have a drink." That went down good and I decided to try again, thinking that maybe she was kidding me.

"Can you imagine the Cincinnati Reds in the basement?"

"Communists in our basement? I'll go right down there, tell them to pack up and go back to Cincinnati. They could ruin the neighborhood and furthermore, our president doesn't like Communist Reds."

"Exactly," I mumbled. "Before you go outside to check on my tomato plants, please bring me the bottle, the ice, and the soda."

On such solid rocks of mutual interest are happy marriages built.

A hue and cry

THERE WAS bound to be a hue and cry. Anything that swift and dramatic is sure to elicit a howl of protest and a volley of criticism.

What all the fuss about around town is Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood's decision to make wholesale changes in the city's planning commission. Out went four commissioners and in came four new faces.

With the appointment of two others to fill expired terms last month, that leaves Ken White the senior member. He's been on since January.

It was no big surprise that something was going to be done sooner or later when it came to the planning commission. Candidate Eastwood (and others) hammered away at the commission during the campaign, perhaps using the commission as a symbol of all that was wrong with the former administration.

So it should have come as little to surprise — to either the people that were on the opposite end of the 3-1 margin Eastwood garnered, or the even the former planning commissioners themselves — that the commission was one of the first things due for a drastic change once the new administration took over.

And it shouldn't have come as a suprise to the people who did vote him in; in fact they probably should have expected it of him.

Well, Mayor Eastwood is well within his rights to appoint whomever he wants to the planning commission; it can be likened to a new president's ability to pick his own cabinet members. No one would expect a new president to retain his predecessor's cabinet. It's entirely his prerogative, with the approval of a majority of the council, of course.

Yes, there have been charges of everything from a "personal vendetta" to a potential "conflict of interest," but those are mere tempests in a teapot, more products of anger and resentment than facts.

What I regret about this whole episode is the way in which it was all handled, which was poorly.

It's easy to sit here and play armchair mayor, or armchair mayor's advisor, and I wouldn't want to place blame anywhere (there's rarely just one person involved in these things anyway), but I still feel the affair could have been handled with a little more courtesy and sensitivity. We are, after all, talking about people, human beings, dedicated to the community and concerned about its future, no matter which side of the fence they sit on.

So no matter who is to blame, ultimately it's the mayor, and because of who he is, the city of Carmel, whose image gets a little tarnished.

It would be a shame to blunt the momentum, enthusiasm and goodwill that Eastwood's campaign has generated.

Maybe it's time to get out the polishing cloth.

Piccadilly sculptures

Dear Editor:

I've recently become aware of a plan, in prospect, which would allocate Piccadilly Park space to the art of local sculptors. I'm in full support of this joyous idea.

The space has already been created; this idea uses the space creatively, demonstrating creativity, and the medium of the sculptor itself is an expression of space through form.

The park would evolve to the level of a passe-partout into the vitality of this community, whose reputation as a hamlet of artists precedes it.

The right to hear

Dear Editor:

Bless the tourists Mr. Mayor but how does the Carmel resident get into the city council meetings? It's one thing to cut the time for comments to three minutes but quite another issue when concerned residents cannot avail themselves of attendance.

This month's meeting had critical issues that warrant the rights of the residents be upheld. Until the "movie" stigma leaves the city, if ever, why can't the council meetings be held at the Sunset Center?

Our city citizens have a right to hear and be heard!

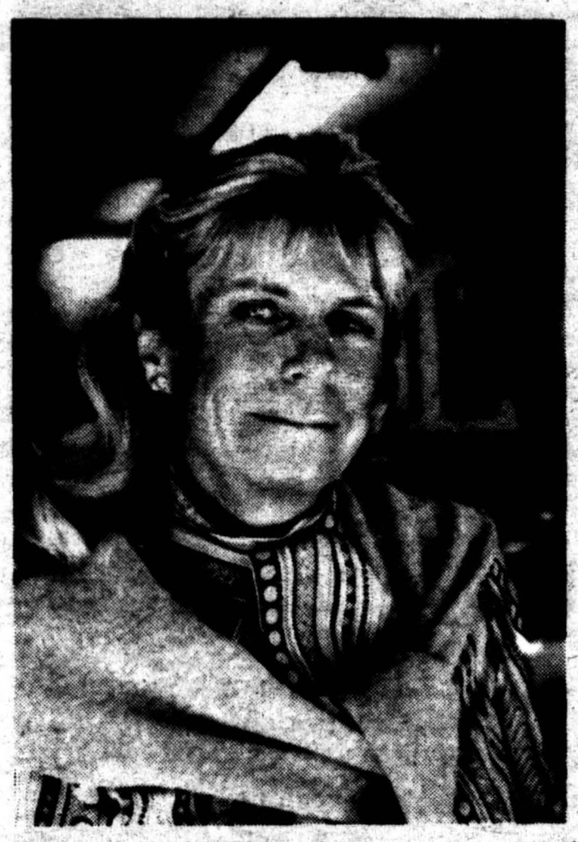
New commissioners prepared to take on the job

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission needed a little time to introduce itself when it met June 11.

With the exception of one person, Ken White, the entire commission consists of new names and faces.

The Carmel City Council on June 3 removed in a 3-2 vote all the planning commissioners appointed during the prevous administration. Because the city was then without a planning commission, the council declared an emergency and confirmed the appointments of Mayor Clint Eastwood to the newly-vacant seats.



CARLA RAMSEY

Eastwood reappointed White and nominated architects Olof Dahlstrand and Fred Keeble, realtor Carla Ramsey and publisher Bill Brown to fill the seats of the former commissioners. They replace commissioners Sandy Swain, Gene Cava, Marjorie Montelius and Thomas Nash, all nominated by former Mayor Charlotte Townsend. Eastwood had appointed Bruce Roberts and Ed Hicks in May to take the expired terms of commissioners Art Mertens and Gene Hammond.

The actions of Townsend's planning commission was a major issue during the mayoral campaign this year. Eastwood claimed it was unresponsive to applicants' needs and occasionally rude.

Technically, the new nominations are temporary; appointments will not be made permamnent until the July 1 Carmel City Council meeting. The appointments were temporary replacements to fill the planning commission seats while the city announces the vacancies and collects applications for appointments.

Each new appointment will be designated to serve out the remainder of a removed planning commissioner's four-year term. Swain's term expires in 1987 and Cava, Montelius, Nash and White's terms expire in 1989. Hicks and Roberts seats will be up for reappointment in 1990.

Carla Ramsey

AN ASSOCIATE realtor on the peninsula for five years, Carla Ramsey works out of Ocean Avenue Realty on Ocean Avenue and has been a resident of Carmel since 1975. She first came to the peninsula in 1974.

Her interest in the Carmel Planning Commission started long before her appointment, she said. She had an application filed with the city before the election and Eastwood called her to ask if she still wanted to serve about one week prior to the city council meeting, she said.

"For many years, even before I was in real estate, I was interested in the things the planning commission does and the things it doesn't do," Ramsey explained. "I have personally felt involved ever since I came here."

An example of her commitment, Ramsey said, was her 10-year fight to get tour buses off the main streets of Carmel.

Her appointment also elicted charges of conflict of interest from Wright. Wright said she was a member of the Carmel Board of Realtors and its Political Action Committee, a group involved in political issues on the peninsula.

However, Ramsey said while the Political Action Committee may take a stand on some issues, its primary function is to "bring people in real estate up to date on what local political issues are going on."

It's there to improve communication and no one has asked her to resign from it, she said.

She intends, she added, to remove herself from voting if any home she had listed or issues came up on the planning commission agenda that might prove to be a conflict for her.

"I'm more interested in the planning commission as a resident than as a business person," she said. "I'm concerned and don't want to see the nature of Carmel change. We should keep tabs on the type of development in town and insure that individual property rights of property owners are not being restricted while big projects go through."

As a planning commissioner, Ramsey said she would like the commission to ensure applicants get the help they need.

"First of all, I would like to make available to individuals and interested parties all the information they need. The commission should have patience and a welcoming attitude when projects come before it," she said. "I would like to see things cleared up and simplified so the situation is clarified the first time people come in."

Applicant confusion has been a problem in the past, she feels.

"I know of a couple of my clients who moved out of the city limits because they could not deal anymore with the planning commission. I think that is very sad."

There are also a few specific problems Ramsey said she would like to see addressed by the commission.

"I personally have had a lot of difficulty with uneven sidewalks. It's not that I want to black top the village — I like the village atmosphere — but some of the dirt ones are in such bad repair they are dangerous. It seems there should be a happy medium," she observed.

In addition, Ramsey would like to deal with the small lots and codes on lot line adjustments.

"If a structure straddles a 100 by 40 foot lot, it's my understanding that in order to make use of each lot independently, the structure must be torn down. I think things like that need to be addressed," she said.

Another item Ramsey said she would like to see studied more and clarified is the "use of property versus the amount of water we have."

"For instance, the restrictions on the R-4 district — are they because of density or because of water? I don't know and I would like to learn."

Ramsey said she was concerned to hear that some smaller individual projects are restricted because of water while larger projects seem to get approval.

Judging architectural designs to maintain the physical ambiance of Carmel, Ramsey said should be done on a case-by-case basis.

"I don't know of any particular building that I think is really better than others. The fact that there are so many different and unique buildings in this town gives it its flavor. I don't think I would want streets and streets of Cottage Row type of buildings — though I have nothing against the building itself.

"I don't want to see too much massiveness or the building homes to the edge of each lot. I believe in setbacks — but within reason," she said.

The removal of the former planning commissioners, Ramsey said, is something she does not "feel personally responsible for." With a change in administration, those in office now have a right to nominate people who reflect their policies, she said.

Bill Brown

BILL BROWN has been the publisher of the family-owned Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook since he and his brother, Warren Brown, bought the paper in 1982 from Albert Eisner.

Prior to coming to Carmel, Brown worked as associated publisher on other family newspapers in Richmond and Berkeley. His father was a newspaper publisher in the San Francisco Bay area and his brother is the publisher of The Montclarion, an Oakland weekly.

His application to the planning commission came about for a two-fold reason, Brown said.

"I was asked to serve by the mayor so I applied, but my main reason was that I live and work here in Carmel and believe I can do some good for the community."

Brown pointed out that he has served on a number of committees and boards while an associate publisher in Northern California.

However, Brown said, this is the first time he has served on a city commission.

His nomination brought forth charges of conflict of interest by some citizens of Carmel and from Councilman James Wright in particular during the city council meeting in which Brown was nominated.

Brown answers those charges by pointing out there is a "a lot of precedent" for newspaper publishers to serve on decision-making boards in cities around the country.

"There's precedent in my own family. My father served on many boards and my brother is on the convention commission in Oakland. Gannett Publishing, one of the largest media companies in the United States, encourages its editors and staff to become involved in city government and serve on city boards," he said. "I'm not quite sure what they mean by conflict of interest. If there is any hint of a conflict, I will remove myself from that vote — as I expect any of the other commissioners to do."

He added he does not "know of a way around" the feeling some people will harbor that he will manipulate news coverage.

"All I can say is that I never have," he said. "And we will continue going on about reporting the planning commission as always. There is outside media also covering the meetings and they are open to the public. Anyone can attend."

His opinion and ones in the newspaper are not always the same, he said.

"On many occassions, I have not agreed with what my editors have written in their editorials but allowed it to go in under their name."

His duties as a planning commissioner and the function of the commission, Brown believes, is to "decide the appropriate land use in the city and control growth — which doesn't mean stop growth.

"The whole planning commission and city function has to be oriented primarily toward the residential community. It's been that way in the past and that needs to continue. I don't think we want anymore T-shirts shops — but I want an ice cream parlor," he said.

Business and city planning are not mutually exclusive ideas, Brown added.

"The free enterpise system doesn't preclude rules and regulations that citizens of the community want. As long as you consider those rules, you're not violating the rights of anybody."

While the former commission, Brown said, "tried in their own way to maintain the residential character of the community, I think they were awfully 'nit-picking.' I felt they had a misconception about business and they thought if you were in business you were out to milk the city. With the exception of a couple of business people here, I don't think anyone wants to damage the community.

"I think they were probably a little bit inconsistent in their decisions. People never

BILL BROWN

The former planning commission's idea to assemble a book of architecture and styles that were considered compatible with Carmel is a good one, Brown said, and should help with that kind of problem.

The long delays people have had to go through on an application, he added, are very detrimental and is something he would like to see alleviated.

On his opinion about the removal of the former planning commission members and of the adverse publicity surrounding the action, Brown said he thinks that there "would never be an appropriate time or easy way to what the mayor had to do. He was elected on a 3-1 margin and would have been remiss not to make changes."

New planners to meet June 18

THE NEW Carmel Planning Commission will have its first opportunity to take action on applications before the city Wednesday, June 18.

Agenda items to be heard during the meeting at 4 p.m. June 18 in the Carmel City Council Chambers should have been considered June 11, but the swearing-in of five new planning commissioners and one reappointment forced the regular meeting date to be changed to a study session. A sixth commissioner, Fred Keeble, was unable to attend and will be sworn in at a later date.

In the June 18 meeting, new commissioners Olof Dahlstrand, Carla Ramsey, Bill Brown, Bruce Roberts, Ed Hicks and reappointed commissioner Ken White will consider:

- A master use permit, design review and the whether to require an environmental impact report for a major remodel of a commercial building on the corner of San Carlos Street and Sixth Avenue.

The remodel, Planning Director Diane White said, entails raising the first floor to street level of commercial space currently occupied by the Strawberry Patch.

The remodel entails dividing the single area into two commercial spaces. Commercial square footage would be reduced from one space approximatley 3,000 sq. ft. to two at 1,100 sq. ft.

- An application by William Lawson for a takeout ice parlor on San Carlos Street near Ocean Avenue in the current location of the Carmel Barbershop.

Lawson, a former owner of the now-closed Swensen's Ice Cream Parlor on Ocean Avenue, has proposed to sell a complete line of ice cream products, but the space is too small to allow for seating.

Under the present ordinance and a proposed frozen dessert place ordinance, no eating place can be exclusively takeout.

- A use permit for an apparel shop in Paradise Mall on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street. The shop is taking the vacated space of the apparel store, Ascot on Ocean.
- A resubmittal by Paul Laub for sliding glass doors on the Dolores Street side of the Paradise Building. Laub's first application was denied by the former planning commission in May.
- A use permit for a crafts shop, Palumbo, on the corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue. The shop is replacing the Craft House.
- A residential design study for Al Landi's two-story home on Monte Verde Street between Eighth and Ninth avenues.
- A demolition permit for a single family residence, construction of an underground garage and minor subdivision for a four-unit condominium on Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Fifth avenues. The developer is Earl Walls.

PROUD FARMER in Carmel Valley is fast becoming an endangered species as urban sprawl begins to overtake the rural quality of life. The draft Carmel Valley Master Plan and its accompanying environmental impact report hopes to control some of that growth and preserve the rural atmosphere. An informational session on the EIR will be conducted by Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman at 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 16 at the Carmel Valley Community Center. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Master plan EIR asks for growth restraints

• Cluster development would be prohibited at the Fiskdale Ranch and in mid-Valley. Zoning of less than one acre per unit is prohibited in Carmel Valley Village.

• Property owners in the floodplain could transfer their development rights to other locations at the Valley floor.

• Policies are to be adopted supporting: widening Highway 1 to four lanes from Carmel Valley Road to Rio Road; improving the shoulders and spot realignments to Los Laureles Grade; and adding left turn lanes at all intersections on Carmel Valley Road between Robinson Canyon Road and Ford Road.

• The county should explore alternatives to the Hatton Canyon Freeway that would minimize traffic problems but at the same time not be as growth-inducing as the freeway proposal.

Perhaps the most far-reaching of the master plan proposals is its quota system designed to "manage growth within the capacity of Carmel Valley's natural resources and infrastructure."

Waiting in the wings for the moratorium to be lifted are 12 different projects of about 1,250 proposed units totaling nearly 7,700 acres, according to information in the draft EIR.

The total number of lots of record to be developed over the next 20 years was reduced from the original 2,181 because 415 new units were developed between 1979 and 1985, according to the EIR.

The draft EIR suggests that the total buildout be adjusted because of the new construction so that only 900 additional units are permitted along with the 615 vacant existing lots of record and 250 units in subdivisions exempt from the allocation system.

•

HOWEVER, the draft EIR points out that the quota is not a "rigid figure" because two units of senior housing counts as only one new lot of record.

Also, second units — the "granny" housing on single parcels — does not count as a new lot and the county also has an authority to exempt low and moderate cost housing from the quota system.

Using those guidelines, the draft EIR predicts that another 100 senior citizen units could be added to the 1,765 limit on buildout over the next 20 years.

To fairly allocate units for new development, the draft EIR recommends that the county keep its proposed subdivision evaluation system, which would rank proposals based on environmental impacts.

Rankings will help supervisors determine which projects best meet the goals and policies of the Carmel Valley Master Plan. Large projects, such as the Odello East development, would have to be phased even if selected for approval because of the 45-unit per year limit.

The Odello Ranch is specifically mentioned in the EIR. Under terms of the development, the Odellos have agreed to lower the levy and flood the family farm to keep the danger at a minimal for the rest of the mouth of the Valley.

However, there are still questions over who will pay for the levee and how many units can be allowed given the environmental restraints — most notable being traffic.

The EIR skirts these questions, but does propose a policy that would state: "The county of Monterey supports the proposed flood mitigation project for the lower Carmel River on the Odello property. New development in the lower Valley development area shall be restricted until the flood hazard is controlled in this area."

Traffic is a major issue addressed in the draft EIR, which states:

• "Hatton Canyon Freeway: A proposed four-lane freeway from the Carmel River to just north of Carpenter Street with interchanges at Carpenter Street and Carmel Valley Road is expected to divert 80 percent of the traffic otherwise expected to use Highway 1 north of Carmel Valley Road.

•

'CARMEL Valley Road widening to four lanes: between Highway 1 and Carmel Rancho Boulevard. This would be done as part of Hatton Canyon Freeway project.

Carmel City Council sets public hearing on budget

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE CARMEL City Council will meet in a special session June 19 to conduct a public hearing on the proposed 1986-87 municipal budget and also discuss recommended improvements to Highway 68.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

City Administrator Doug Schmitz actually will ask the council to approve a biennial budget that covers the next two years.

The 1986-87 budget is set at $5.9 million — a 0 percent increase over 1985-86. The 1987-88 proposed budget is estimated to reach about $6.6 million with most of the increase over 1986-87 charged to additional capital improvement projects.

One key issue expected to be decided is whether the council wants the city to contribute $10,000 toward a $23,000 feasibility study on building a new 1,500-seat auditorium at the south end of Sunset Center.

The new auditorium is proposed by an organization called Friends of Sunset Center, which would pay the remaining $13,000 for the feasibility study.

Schmitz believes that the $10,000 grant request is "premature" because of several unanswered questions and the fact that no recommendation has been received from the Community and Cultural Commission, which is the advisory board for activities at Sunset Center.

Schmitz, in a memo to the council, raised four questions:

- "If the study proves that a new theater is feasible, whose financial responsibility is the environmental impact report?
- "Would the Friends of Sunset Center also raise funds for the parking garage or is the extent of the Friends obligation the new theater?
- "If it is determined that the project will go forward, who is responsible for the hiring and payment of an architect, engineer and landscaping consultants?
- "If a new theater is constructed, will it become the obligation of the city to fund the repair and maintenance of the facility?"

Schmitz does not believe the city should commit itself to the study until there are more discussions with Friends of Sunset Center.

"Until such time as a conclusive dialogue has occurred between the Friends and the city so that the exact extent of the city's future obligation is known, and until such time as the council receives a report and recommendation from the Community and Cultural Commission, I believe that the contribution of $10,000 towards the feasibility study is premature," Schmitz wrote in his report.

•

ANOTHER QUESTION before the council is whether to allocate $20,000 to help fund a full-time recreation director at the Carmel Youth Center.

The director would help with activities at the youth center and oversee the city's recreation program. The project would be in conjunction with the Carmel Unified School District.

Other key points in the budget include:

- Four separate contingency funds that total about $1 million.
- A police budget of $1.33 million for 31 full-time employees.
- A 2 percent pay raise for staff that will cost about $129,000.
- With the exception of the recreation director, no new employees will be added.
- About two-thirds of the revenues will be generated from predominately tourist sources as $2.43 million is expected to be taken in through the 10 percent room tax and another $1.29 million from the city's share of the sales tax.
- A $7,500 grant to the Carmel Business Association.

In a separate matter, the council will hear a proposal from Susan Whitman on alternative improvements to Highway 68 between Carmel Hill and Pacific Grove.

Whitman, a Pacific Grove councilwoman and member of the chamber of commerce, will update the council on the Holman Highway Task Force activities. She is chairperson of the task force.

The key question before the council is whether Carmel should support a task force proposal to delete the proposed Haul Road gate. The gate is a requirement of the Pebble Beach Co. as part of its permit for the Spanish Bay resort project.

There is some local sentiment that if the gate is eliminated a result would be more traffic using the Carmel entrance at North San Antonio Street.

The task force, however, is fearful that the gate and its accompanying signal will just add to the congestion on Highway 68.

Other proposals to be discussed include widening of the highway, adding passing lanes and making improvements at the signal fronting Community Hospital.

Piccadilly Park to undergo a major facelift

By MICHAEL GARDNER

PICCADILLY PARK will no longer be known as a miniature golf course or pagoda gardens west.

Work began this week on several major changes to Piccadilly Park that will cost the city approximately $2,100.

The council at its June 3 meeting unanimously approved four recommendations made by City Forester Gary Kelly with the advice of the forestry commission, neighbor Jim Dougherty of Spencer's on the Park and local architect Richard Barrett.

The first change also is the most noticeable — the removal of the entrance arbor, which Kelly called "too large, not compatible with the park's design (and) obstructs the view into the park."

The arbor will be replaced with a grape stake fence that will match the existing fence.

Another oft-criticized feature of the park has been the guard rails around the pond to the west. Kelly described the guard rails as "unsightly and not harmonious with the park's character."

The iron guard rails will be replaced by a wood fence, which has the drawback of slightly blocking the view of the pond, Kelly said.

A third major complaint has been the stark wall of Toots Lagoon. As Kelly reported, "Massive, stark, with attention being drawn to it because of its negative impact on the park."

The council accepted Kelly's recommendation to install a free-standing trellis between the columns with a fast growing vine planted to grow on it. Planter boxes will be hung from the top of the existing overhang so flowers can flow down the wall.

"This combination will break up the wall, bringing it into scale with the park," Kelly believes.

And city crews also will plant three trees at the rear of the park to give it a "forested feeling," Kelly added.

The council June 3 also seemed interested in a proposal made by several area artists to make Piccadilly into a sculpture garden.

The artists are expected to prepare a formal presentation for the forestry commission and council at a later date.

It was another marathon session for the council, which met for more than five hours on a variety of topics.

Most of the much-maligned fence along Carmel Beach — originally installed to help protect the slopes after the devastating 1982-83 winter storms — will be removed, the council decided.

•

THE ONLY remaining fence area will be between Ninth and 11th avenues and 50 feet in either direction of the storm-damaged access stairway at 12th Avenue.

The action was taken on the recommendation of the Carmel Beach task force.

In another beach-related matter, the council also approved the formation of a five-member beach committee that will be staffed by Kelly.

The duties of the committee will be "to advise the forestry commission and city council on the preservation, enhancement, protection and care of Carmel Beach and Scenic Road area.

"(And) to propose measures that assist in the implementation of the forestry management plan, general plan and other community projects which relate to Carmel Beach and the Scenic Road area."

The Scenic Road Property Owners Association originally proposed that the city establish a formal beach commission.

However, City Administrator Doug Schmitz had recommended against a beach commission because its responsibilities would overlap with those of the forestry commission. A city ordinance also would have to be prepared formalizing the duties and responsibilities of a beach commission.

After meeting with Schmitz, Scenic Road representatives agreed with him and the concept of a less formal beach committee was agreed upon.

In other action June 3, the council:

• Directed staff to work out a contract with Ocean Avenue Realty for the marketing of 1.43 acres of the Flanders Mansion estate. The contract should come before the council for approval July 1.

• Denied a lot line adjustment for Lee Hill that would have allowed him to demolish a home on San Antonio Street and build two residences.

• Did not hear an appeal from Paul Laub over planning commission denial of his proposal for exterior changes to the Paradise building, northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street. Laub withdrew his appeal and will re-file with the planning commission.

• Adopted a resolution allowing residents in the Fourth Avenue and Monte Verde Street neighborhood to develop a mini-park and provide no-parking signs for that site.

BEHIND THE LINES
BY MICHAEL GARDNER

Dancin' to the Annex Shuffle

TO BUILD or not to build, that is the question . . . Theirs is not to make reply and it is not for us to reason why.

With apologies for journalistic license (we could never quote anybody correctly anyway), of course old friends Bill Shakespeare and Tennyson were not writing about the Harrison Memorial Library annex way back when. But sometimes it sure seems the issue has been around that long. And some say there's just no rhyme or reason for the delay.

Today, enter Clint Eastwood, the mayor who, like his movie characters, is all action and little talk. Promises, we have. Quick action, he learns, is harder than memorizing Hamlet's classic speech.

Before his first gavel, Clint pretty much endorsed the annex proposal by saying that whatever the library board wants is okay with him.

But, and we have here a pretty big but, Clint soon ran afoul of his trusted allies, Elinor Laiolo and Bob Fischer, neither of whom are big fans of the new building.

On one hand Clint wants to support the library board and keep true to his past public statements. However, on the other hand he doesn't seem to have the majority of the council to push through the annex because incumbent Helen Arnold also is on the no-go side.

So what's a mayor to do?

Punt back to the library board, I suggest.

Here's the reason why. We have the board president, Jack Billwiller, firmly entrenched on the pro-annex side. And—despite a couple of votes—two other current players, George Rommel and Tom Duffy, seem to be straddling the fence on this one.

So when Clint appointed Selden Smith, a self-employed Carmel resident of 15 years, and John Kennedy, vice president of Galerie de Tours, as new board members, once again Edison's light bulb came on.

What if they don't support the annex?

With Ma Bell to the rescue, we find Smith balancing Billwiller. Here's what Smith had to say: "Build it as one building instead of a whole lot of annexes."

A less adamant Kennedy appears to join Duffy and Rommel on the fence. "I think the matter has been sufficiently studied to indicate there is a need for more space. I'm totally open," Kennedy responds to the obvious question.

Clint can get out of this jam by referring the issue back to the library board during the July 1 council meeting. They can go from there.

Playing the guessing game, look for the annex to die and a new addition built in the garden area fronting Ocean Avenue to match the wing housing the reading room.

This would also free the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue for other uses—most likely parking.

And that would pose an interesting chain of events because for $685,000 the city can have a 20-space underground facility if one stuck to the figures used for the parking garage proposed as part of the annex.

For another $35,000 or so the ground level could be developed into about 25 spaces, giving the city about 45 spaces and public restrooms for a little more than $700,000.

Add that in with the Pine Inn proposal and you've got all kinds of numbers and variables to play with.

Now, who told Clint this was an easy job?

NO LONGER LOOSE AS A GOOSE

If you miss our wandering goose in the vicinity of Carmel River Beach, don't fret. He's safe and won't be Christmas dinner for anyone.

Seems that our hero — let's call him Gomer for ease of writing — wandered into the Carmel River Inn grounds the other day and decided to take a dip in the pool. Gomer even swam alongside one of the guests and played Greg Louganis on the diving board; at least until the time came to jump in. Then Gomer knew his goose was cooked and turned chicken.

Anyway, Kay Payne, who manages the inn with husband Richard, managed to shut the gate and kept Gomer penned until help could arrive from the SPCA.

SPCA Wildlife Center Director Lisa Hoefler figures Gomer is somebody's lost pet since he is used to people and dogs. "I'm pretty convinced that this goose doesn't know he's a goose."

Hoefler reports that Gomer will be given to a private party with a pond or perhaps sent to a special wildlife facility in Bakersfield where he can be around people all day.

CARMEL PHOTOART employees raise a toast at their closing night party. Because of lease problems and the inability by owner Marty Fox to sell, the popular photo-processing operation in Paradise Mall was forced to shut its doors Friday, May 30. The city probably is glad to see the operation go since it used about 700,000 gallons of water annually — enough to supply about 10 homes. Having a splash of champagne are: (clockwise from center) Adam Costa, Derek Dean, Robb Halock, Wayne Capili and Alison Cocker. (Michael Gardner photo.)

SOMEBODY OUT THERE PAYS HEED

Squeaky wheel gets the grease . . . Remember last week when Behind the Lines and Business Beat wrote—in a nice way of course—about the city "looking the other way" while tacky signs proliferated and businesses ignored most rules and regulations?

Well, City Administrator Doug Schmitz writes in his Friday Letter that "mouser" Mary Jahr Purvis (officially our "planning services coordinator") has spent the last six weeks updating form letters on violations so that "each might reflect a more friendly attitude."

Now, this week Mary will turn her attention to chatting with some of the merchants to see if they will voluntarily follow some of the guidelines.

Doug even names some complaints. Not-so-disguised by bureaucratese are the "tongue sandwich" sign just north of city hall and the "Clintville" poster just west of the post office.

Strangely absent is any mention of Paul Laub's "Clintville" in Paradise Mall. But maybe not so strangely. Paul has given $6,000 to the "Mayor's Youth Fund" generated by sales of T-shirts sloganed around Clint.

Could you see the headlines if Clint shut down Paul, who is a former campaign opponent and donator of big bucks to our youngsters?

It's called the "seven-day policy" and out of curiosity I obtained a copy.

Now, not making any judgment, it might be a good idea for this new three-member majority to read it and make changes, if necessary.

The policy, adopted in 1980 and revised in 1982, states: "At least seven days prior to public announcement of a proposed appointment, the mayor or the city clerk at the mayor's request, shall inform each council member individually of the mayor's first and second choices for the position."

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE . . .

Not only does the closing of PhotoArt end the city's long-running legal feud with that business, it also means more water on paper for thirsty Carmel.

PhotoArt used about 700,000 gallons of water annually, or roughly 2.2 ac. ft. That translates into supplying enough for eight to 12 homes.

A drop in the bucket, so to speak. But water-short Carmel will take it.

Home run derby set for June 21

'IT'S GOING, going, gone!" will be the cry of the day Saturday, June 21 when the Carmel Youth Baseball league hosts its First Annual Home Run Derby/Dinner Dance at Larson Field and Crespi Hall at the Carmel Mission.

The home run derby, which will be open to all ages, will be held from 1-6 p.m. at Larson Field on Rio Road next to the Mission, with a full-course Mexican dinner (or hot dogs for any finicky Gringos out there) set for 5:30-6:30 p.m.

Following that a local DJ will spin "oldies but goodies" for the whole family from 7-10 p.m. at Crespi Hall. A live auction will also be held.

Tickets for the dinner/dance are $6.95 and can be purchased from any team mother, the Larson Field snack bar, Carmel Bay Company (corner of Lincoln and Ocean in Carmel), and Bay Bikes (640 Wave St., Cannery Row).

A pitching machine will deliver three balls for a $1, 50 cents for three balls for children 8 and under.

All proceeds benefit Carmel Youth Baseball. For more information call Ron Allen at 646-9090 or Gary Gray at 372-7571.

Football star Rosey Grier inspires Briarcliff grads

Story and photos
BY HOLLY McFARLAND

'IT'S NOT how big, how tall, how small, what size you are, or how black you are, but who you are that counts," summed up former professional football star Roosevelt "Rosie" Grier, in his inspiring address to an enthusiastic turnout for the graduating eighth-grade class at Carmel's Briarcliff Academy Friday morning.

And somehow you don't hear THAT kind of stuff anymore. It made you want to don a cap and put on a gown even if you were well past graduating years. It made you feel like you could start again, if you were just entering your third-grade in school or well settled into mid-life complacency.

Grier's references to his days in the pros as a hulking lineman for the NFL New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams scored points with the crowd of fog-shrouded parents and school assembly.

He emphasized fundamentals and practice as the keys to succeeding in academics as well as athletics. "Be ready to run with the ball so when it comes time to run with it you won't drop it," Grier said.

His hefty 6-foot 5-inch, 280-pound frame knelt down and swayed at times to get the attention of the second and third-graders peering from their seats. He talked in chants and positive notes: "Say 'I can!' " as he solicited audience participation. With balloons in hand the Briarcliff students and onlookers readily complied and repeated "I can!"

Grier added, "If you say I can't, then you won't, but I choose to believe that I can."

He noted with gestures and voice inflection that "we can change it — the world or whatever we face — it starts with me."

Grier stressed the American ethic of working hard and being the best you can be by heeding such essentials as dedication, discipline, and paying attention to details.

"Why does Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics make it?" he asked. "Because he tries. The person has to want to do it and make a plan and work hard."

He pointed out that the students from kindergarten age to accomplished eighth-graders are on the front line of life. Their job means tackling the obstacles that come their way. When there's a break in the line of opportunity, whether the goal is obstetrician, musician, or beautician, there's a way to make it.

Afterward, as Grier sat in his chair as a spectator to the gallant procession as they each received their well-earned diplomas, he deftly handled a rose given him by the school. His awesome frame looked gentler as he held the long stemmed rose.

He held the same type of rose that was given each of the graduating eighth-graders. The fragrant bloom was perhaps symbolic of what will inevitably unfold in each of the graduates' lives, their purpose, their mission.

ROSIE GRIER espouses a positive view for the Briarcliff Academy graduates.

THE GRADUATING class of Briarcliff Academy is ready to receive their diplomas Friday, June 6.

Unlikely coalition joins to fight Wilson bill

By MAC McDONALD

IT'S CALLED the "Coastal Partnership for Big Sur" and it has sent a clear — and collective — message to Sen. Pete Wilson and his recent bill to "federalize" Big Sur: "Thanks, but no thanks."

In a rare show of unity, several disparate groups consisting of national, state and local politicians, residents, businesspeople, environmentalists and civic leaders, banded together recently in a crazy-quilt opposition to Wilson's bill, the latest in a long line of attempts to bring some kind of widespread federal control over the scenic Big Sur coast. Previous attempts at so-called "federalization" have been thoroughly thwarted by relatively small but plucky groups of Big Sur residents and supporters.

This time it was Rep. Leon Panetta, ironically he himself being one of the "thwartees" a few years ago in an ill-fated plan to bring a federal presence to the area, who was the catalyst in bringing several opposition fronts together in attempting to get Wilson to change his mind and drop his bill.

Wilson, Panetta reported at a press conference revealing the coalition, has "indicated his willingness to listen," but did not elaborate.

Simply put, the Coastal Partnership for Big Sur wants to retain local control over Big Sur, using Monterey County's own recently-certified Local Coastal Plan as its guiding document.

"Our hope," Panetta said, "is to develop a strong private and public strategy that effectively responds to the concerns over the future of Big Sur without mandating a larger federal presence such as that envisioned in the bill introduced by Sen. Pete Wilson."

Panetta said the partnership grew out of the strong critical reaction and mounting opposition to Wilson's bill, which occurred virtually from the day it was introduced. The bill has been criticized roundly for being "vague," "incomplete" and handing too much power over to the Secretary of Agriculture.

"We are pleased that Sen. Wilson shares in our goal of preserving this unique area," Panetta said. "But we believe that this can best be accomplished by building on the existing efforts of the community."

Panetta said there were three "areas of action" that can unify the community behind the LCP's purpose in "preserving and protecting" Big Sur: An improved coordination ordinance, a Big Sur Preservation Commission to help raise funds for LCP, and making sure that federal lands fall in line with the goals of the LCP.

For the first area of action Panetta said the group would help Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman draft a proposed county ordinance establishing a Big Sur Area Advisory Coordinating Council, which would be a liaison between various governmental agencies, residents and landowners.

A non-profit preservation commission made up of local citizens and groups will help raise private funds to help the county protect the viewshed protection elements of the LCP.

And to ensure that U.S. Forest Service activities conform to the LCP the coalition is considering several alternatives, including: a letter from Panetta to Max Peterson, head of the Forest Service, urging the inclusion of goals of the LCP into the final management plan for the Los Padres National Forest; extension of the existing Ventana Wilderness; dedication of federal lands to the county for administrative purposed related to the LCP; and "specific limitations" on uses in the Forest Service areas along the Big Sur coast.

Members involved in the Coastal Partnership for Big Sur, which has met for the past several weekends, include:

Panetta, state Sen. Ken Maddy, and Assemblyman Eric Seastrand; Monterey County Supervisors Sam Karas (chairman) and Strasser Kauffman; Bob Bussinger, president of Big Sur chamber; Alvin Andrus, president, and Brian Steen, executive director, Big Sur Land Trust; Mike Caplin, president, Coast Property Owners Association; Margaret Owings, Big Sur resident; Jim Jossoff (chairman), Sandy Sanderson (vice-chair), Barbara Von Protz-Chamberlain, and Alan Perlmutter, Friends of the Big Sur Coast; Gary Tate, manager of Monterey Regional Park District; Richard Dalsemer, Monterey Peninsula resident; Katherine Short, Big Sur resident; Jo Stallard, county planning commissioner and Monterey Peninsula resident; Jim Hill, Big Sur resident; Roger Newell, Monterey Peninsula resident; Janie Figen, Monterey Peninsula resident; and Gary Koeppel, Big Sur resident.

On leaving Carmel Middle School

By Frank Lynch
Carmel Middle School Principal

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the people with whom I have had the pleasure of working over the past five years while serving as principal of Carmel Middle School.

It has been my pleasure to have known and worked with a tremendous group of students. They have had many successes both inside and out of the classroom.

The parents have been caring, supportive and always willing to work for the betterment of the school.

The staff is highly professional. They do an excellent job with your children and academic excellence is their goal. When you put these three factors together you have an excellent educational environment. This is the environment that I have had the pleasure of working in and I will miss it.

Carmel Middle School, you are the best. Take a step back every once in a while and admire yourself. You are too good to be true.

27 years of service

CARMEL'S MARJORIE McKiernon, seen here with Carmel Red Cross chapter board member Don Nelson, was recently presented with the Harriman Award for Distinguished Volunteer Service — the highest award the organization gives to volunteers — at the Red Cross' national convention in Indianapolis last week. McKiernon, 83, began her career as a Red Cross volunteer more than 27 years ago and was a tireless campaigner to get people to donate blood as part of her responsibilities with the chapter's Bloodmobile Recruitment Program. She often overcame 'first-time donors' reluctance with her warm and pursuasive manner. A native of Wyoming, she graduated from nursing school in Oregon, then worked as a public health nurse in Oregon and Wisconsin. As a lieutenant in the nurse corps of Gen, George Patton's Third Army in Europe during World War II she met and married her late husband Tom. It was during her stint with the Army that she realized the importance of donating blood to save lives. Soon after moving to Carmel she joined the local Red Cross effort in recruiting blood donors. Although confined to a wheelchair and visually impaired, Mrs. McKiernon carried on, her spirit undaunted and her devotion to the community clear. "It's not, 'What can I do for me?' but 'What can I do for my community?' " she says. Her trip to Indianapolis (with her daughter Patty Freeman) to accept the award, which has only been given to 18 others since 1973, was one of the highlights of her distinguished career.

CALIFORNIA WINEGROWERS' BOARD TO HOLD MEETING IN MONTEREY

The advisory Board of Winegrowers of California will hold its last meeting of this fiscal year—and the first for some new members—at 10 a.m. Wednesday, June 18 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Monterey.

Winegrowers traditionally rotates its advisory board meeting sites around the state as a convenience to local constituents.

Heading the June 18 agenda will be the election of officers for fiscal 1986-87.

Other agenda items will include reports on committee accomplishments during the last year; redefining objectives and setting strategic goals and priorities for the coming year; designating future program thrusts and fund allocations; and setting constituent assessment rates for the new fiscal year.

A detailed update will be given on Winegrowers' new nationwide retail and restaurant wine-training programs and initial reaction to them as perceived at the recent National Restaurant Association convention in Chicago. The programs have been carefully honed from last year's consumer survey, which has become Winegrowers' marketing program "cornerstone."

Winegrowers of California is a statewide organization of more than 6,500 winegrape growers and vintners who united in mid-1984 under a state marketing order to address such joint industry concerns as market development and research, domestic and international trade barriers, and production and processing research.

More information on the June 18 Monterey meeting can be obtained from Winegrowers' office in Emeryville, (415) 547-7642.

MARTIN DROBAC WINS SARAH SIDDONS AWARD

Martin Drobac of Carmel has won the 1986 Sarah Siddons Award for his participation in the Northwestern University Waa-Mu Show. Drobac, a junior in the School of Speech, will split the $3,500 scholarship with cowinner Anthony DiFalco.

The Sarah Siddons Society gives the award each year to a junior who has been in Waa-Mu for at least two years and demonstrates talent and scholarship, said Waa-Mu director Tom Roland. There are no application procedures; Roland and several Sarah Siddons representatives select the junior "who happens to fall into that category," Roland said.

The Sarah Siddons Society, a society Roland calls "an informal group of well-to-do theater-goers," names an outstanding professional star of Chicago theater at a gala each year. Waa-Mu cast members have provided the entertainment for this gala for the last eight years. In return for that entertainment, the Sarah Siddons Society created the NU award in 1980.

Martin is the son of the Drobacs of 25185 Randall Way.

P.B. WOMAN GRADUATES FROM PRINCETON

Anne Calhoon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Calhoon of Pebble Beach, was awarded the bachelor of arts degree at Princeton University's 239th Commencement on June 10. Calhoon, who majored in art history, will enter the executive training program at Bloomingdales in New York City in the fall.

While at Princeton, Anne, along with her roommate Karin Horwitz of Scarsdale, N.Y., established the student balloon agency, Helium Delirium. The business resulted in more than $2,000 annually in sales.

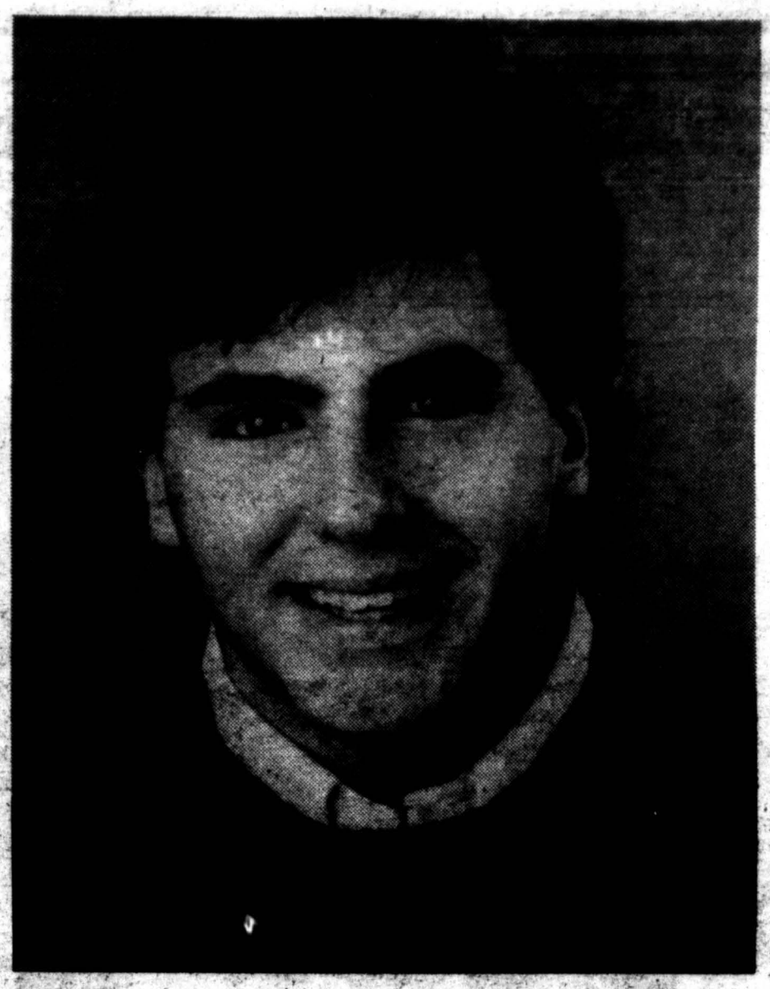
Anne Calhoon was a member of the Whig-Cleo Society and Elm Club at Princeton. A 1981 graduate of Robert Louis Stevenson School, she was one of 35 students chosen nationally to be an English Speaking Union Scholar. She spent a year at Dover College in Kent, England, where she earned two A-levels.

BIG SUR INTERNATIONAL MARATHON DONATES $10,000

The Board of Directors of the Big Sur International Marathon recently distributed $10,000 to Monterey County charities. They have designated $1,000 each to the fire departments that were particularly impacted by the marathon, and that donated many hours of volunteer labor: Carmel Highlands Volunteer Fire Department, Mid Coast Volunteer Fire Company, and the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade.

In addition, they are making a grant of $1,000 to the school in Monterey County that wins a contest for design of the T-shirts for next year's event.

The board invites solicitations from any Monterey County charity or non-profit agency or school that wishes to participate in the distribution of the net proceeds. Contact the Big Sur International Marathon office, P.O. Box 222620, Carmel, CA 93922, for a grant application.



MARTIN DROBAC III of Carmel won the 1986 Sarah Siddons award for his participation in the Northwestern University Waa-Mu Show. He is a junior majoring in speech. He will share the $3,500 scholarship with co-winner Anthony DiFalco.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE NO. 86-13
AN URGENCY ORDINANCE PROHIBITING FIRES ON THE PUBLIC BEACH AFTER THE HOUR OF 10 p.m. AND PROHIBITING FIRES ON THE SLOPES LEADING THERETO

WHEREAS, the Carmel Beach is a treasured resource; and

WHEREAS, the Beach has been severely damaged by winter storms and is in need of repair and restoration; and

WHEREAS, extensive damage has been done to vegetation, trees and other City property; and

WHEREAS, the City has experienced problems regarding persons gathering in beach areas after dark with situations of improperly attended fires being built on the sand areas, unruly behavior, illegal alcohol use and disregard for law enforcement in the area; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the City Council to eliminate destructive, illegal and unacceptable behavior and restore the beach to safe and comfortable use for all residents and visitors; and

WHEREAS, time does not allow for introduction, adoption and passage of thirty (30) days before this Ordinance becomes effective,

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. No person, firm, corporation or other entity shall build, light, maintain, cause or permit to be built, lighted or maintained, any open or outdoor fire on any public beach after the hour of 10 p.m. No fires shall be permitted at any time on the slopes leading thereto within the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. This prohibition is applicable to all that beach and slope area lying West of San Antonio Avenue as it extends to the North from Ocean Avenue, West of Ocean Avenue and West of Scenic Drive. The prohibition against fires on the beach shall extend from 10 p.m. on the day it commences until 7 a.m. the following day.

Section 2. Any ordinances or sections of the Municipal Code in conflict with this Ordinance are hereby suspended during the time of the ban on fires after the hour of 10 p.m.

Section 3. The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea finds that the recitals of fact in the WHEREAS portion of this Ordinance are true and that the prohibition against fires is necessary in order to restore the beach to its natural condition and to avoid the numerous problems that have arisen on the beach in the past after the hour of 10 p.m. Because of the foregoing factors, this Ordinance is declared to be an urgency measure and necessary for the preservation of the public health, safety and general welfare of the residents of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and persons visiting therein. Any person, firm or corporation, whether as principal agent, employ, or otherwise, violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of an infraction.

Section 4. The City Administrator is directed to publicize the prohibition established by this Ordinance and to post signs informing the public of the existence of this Ordinance at appropriate points of access to the areas to which the prohibition applies.

Section 5. This Ordinance shall take effect immediately upon adoption.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE NO. 86-7
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA PROHIBITING THE USE OF ALL FIREWORKS INCLUDING "SAFE AND SANE" FIREWORKS WITHIN THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA

WHEREAS, the Carmel Beach is a treasured resource; and

WHEREAS, Phase II of the beach restoration project has not been completed; and

WHEREAS, extensive damage has been done to vegetation, trees and other City property on past 4th-of-July celebrations; and

WHEREAS, illegal fireworks, explosive and smoke devices have been set off on the 4th of July which have been potentially dangerous and life-threatening; and

WHEREAS, it is extremely difficult to enforce City ordinances which allow "Safe and Sane" fireworks on the beach; and

WHEREAS, the smoke, noise, danger and debris create a nuisance making the celebration of the 4th of July unpleasant for many beachgoers and for private property owners; and

WHEREAS, crowd control problems arose on the beach on the 4th of July, 1982 and 1985, which led to confrontation between law enforcement officers and the crowd; and

WHEREAS, in 1985 the Police Department confiscated 50 pounds of illegal fireworks especially from persons shooting fireworks into large groups of people; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the City Council to change the nature of the 4th of July celebration on Carmel Beach by the elimination of destructive, illegal and antisocial behavior and restore the beach to comfortable family and picnic use on the 4th of July.

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. "FIREWORKS" as used in this Ordinance shall mean any substance, combination of substances or device, containing chemical elements and chemical compounds capable of burning or exploding, prepared for the purpose of producing audible, visual, mechanical, thermal, or other effects. "Fireworks" shall include, but are not limited to, blank cartridges, toys, such as toy pistols, toy cannons, toy canes, or toy guns in which explosives are used, firecrackers, torpedoes, skyrockets, rockets, Roman Candles, Dago bombs, sparklers, party poppers, chasers, fountains, smoke sparks, serial bomb, fireworks kits, paper caps, and other devices of like construction. "Fireworks" shall not include any auto flares, paper caps containing not in excess of an average of twenty-five hundredths of a grain of explosive contents per cap, or toy pistols, toy canes, toy guns or ther devices for use with such caps.

Section 2. No person, firm, corporation or other entity shall, within the incorporated area of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, including the public beach, explode, fire, use, light, ignite, shoot off, or otherwise set off any fireworks.

Section 3. This ordinance is a temporary ban on fireworks. Code sections and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, including any conflict with any part of section 8.32.180 of the Municipal Code are suspended while this ordinance is in effect. This Ordinance shall remain in effect until the first Wednesday after the first Tuesday in February, 1987.

Section 4. The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea finds that the recitals of fact in the WHEREAS portion of this Ordinance are true and that total prohibition of fireworks is necessary in order to restore the lawful use of the Beach on the 4th of July and to enable all persons to use the Beach without fear and aggravation by nuisances.

Section 5. Any person, firm, corporation or other entity which violates the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of an infraction and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding FIFTY DOLLARS ($50).

Section 6. This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

KIDS' BEAT

BY CAROLE COLTER

Get the job done!

By DEE COTTON

Here we go again! President Ron Faia has declared his board a working board—so we have all rolled up our sleeves and are ready to get the job done.

We are most anxious to make the CYC effective and beneficial to our community and have pledged our energies and resources to that end. Our board is well balanced this year between men and women, representing the business community, parent groups, city and schools, along with some longtime supporters of the youth center. This gives us a strong network through the community. We are united!

Obviously, we have not as yet won all the teens back to our facility on a regular basis, but this is a slow-building process. The need is still there and we are not ready to ignore the fact, as most other communities have done. We are still willing to tackle the problem and feel we have a chance to succeed because Carmel is different. Underneath this tourist town, there is a small-town feeling, a caring community, wonderful volunteers, giving parents, and city hall behind us. Besides all that we have a beautiful facility.

You have given our spirits a boost by coming to our aid with generous donations, thereby allowing our doors to remain open. We are very willing to give it another try. In the meantime, we are patiently waiting for the city to decide what involvement they would like to have in our center, before we turn the corner and plan our new approach.

Since we need to increase our budget, our first job is to train ourselves in active fundraising. This is a new role for us as a group, but we are proud to say that our board members have met their first challenge extremely well! They will be hosting tables on June 28 for our First Annual Extravaganza, which will be a prize drawing—top prize being a brand-new 1986 Mazda SR-5 truck. Tickets are being sold through invitations at $200 each, which includes music, dinner for two and many wonderful prizes given out during the evening.

If you did not receive an invitation and would like to come, please call 646-5331 and we will hold your name for an open ticket. It promises to be a very exciting, fun night and we wish you all could join us, but we are limited to 100 tickets. I will tell you more about the Big Kid's party next week and hopefully our summer plans for the CYC. Thanks again, Carmel!

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Federal Communications Commission has designated the following applications for a hearing to commence on July 24, 1986, at 10 a.m. at the offices of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C.: application of Northern California Communications Corporation to increase the power of KVIP (AM), operating on 540 KHz, from 1 KW to 5 KW at Redding, California; application of Jerry J. Collins for a new AM broadcast station to operate on 540 KHz at Carmel Valley, California.

The issues in the hearing are specified as follows:

1. If a final environmental impact statement is issued with respect to Jerry J. Collins which concludes that the proposed facilities are likely to have an adverse effect on the quality of the environment, to determine:
   (a) whether the proposal is consistent with the National Environmental Policy Act, as implemented by Sections 1.1301-1319 of the Commission's Rules, and
   (b) whether, in light of the evidence adduced pursuant to (a) above, the applicant is qualified to construct and operate as proposed.
2. To determine whether the proposal of Jerry J. Collins complies with the coverage requirements of Section 73.24(j) of the Commission's Rules, and, if not, whether waiver is warranted.
3. To determine: (a) the areas and populations which would gain or lose primary aural service from the Northern California Communications Corp. proposal and the availability of other primary service to such areas and populations, (b) the areas and populations which would receive primary aural services from the Jerry J. Collins proposal and the availability of other primary service to such areas and populations, and (c) in light thereof and pursuant to Section 307(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, which of the proposals would better provide a fair, efficient and equitable distribution of radio service.
4. To determine, in the event it be concluded that a choice between the applicants should not be based solely on considerations relating to Section 307(b), which of the proposals would, on a comparative basis, better serve the public interest.
5. To determine, in light of the evidence adduced to the foregoing issues, which of the applications should be granted.

A copy of the application of Jerry J. Collins, amendments thereto, and related material are on file for public inspection at The Carmel Pine Cone & Monterey Peninsula Review, San Carlos and Ocean Avenues, Carmel, CA 93921.

Environmental document may delay new dam's EIR

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board officially heard the bad news June 9 that an environmental impact statement on the proposed San Clemente Dam will probably be required by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The requirement may delay certification of the environmental impact report the district wants to complete before bringing the proposed dam to a district-wide vote.

The board also denied a request by the Carmel Valley Ranch resort to adjust its connection fees, but did allow for a review of the hotel's water usage in two years; appointed Carmel River Advisory members; and approved an ordinance that waives water connection charges for low- and moderate-income housing.

Chairman Dick Heuer announced to the board that "based on recent discussions (with the Corps of Engineers) and contrary to previous understanding" it appeared that water district would have to prepare an EIS for the proposed dam.

The federal requirement for an EIS could delay certification of a state-required environmental impact report on the dam. The district has been preparing the EIR since 1983 and wants it completed before a bond issue for funding the dam is placed on a ballot. The vote on the dam is currently scheduled for November 1987.

District counsel David Laredo told the board that if the EIR is not certified by the election and the dam is voted on, it could leave the water district susceptable to litigation.

An EIS is similar to an EIR, the staff report said, with the exception that feasible alternatives to the dam must be compared in "much greater detail" and "reasons for rejecting an alternative as unfeasible must be described completely."

Because the documents are similar in most other aspects, the water district is investigating the possibility of filing a joint EIR/EIS, Project Coordinator Henrietta Stern explained. That could save the district both time and money.

However, to file a joint report the district could not officially release the draft EIR for public comment until the EIS portion is completed. To do so would invalidate usage of the information in the EIR for an EIS, Stern said.

A draft of the EIR for public comment was scheduled to be released in July 1986, the final EIR was due in November and certification in December 1986. A period for public commentary on an EIR is required by law.

A revised timeline prepared by district staff and presented to the board gives a "realistic" revised timeline of December 1986 for the draft EIR/EIS, April 1987 for a final report and June 1987 for certification of the documents. A "pessimistic" timeline places certification of the EIR/EIS at November 1987, the time of the election.

Exactly how much delay the EIS will entail depends on the extent the Corps of Engineers accepts information prepared for the EIR, Stern said.

AN APPEAL by developers of Carmel Valley Ranch to reduce water connection fees for its 100-room, 43-seat bar and 56-seat restaurant in Carmel Valley was turned around by the board.

Kaye Chandler of Landmark Land, developers of Carmel Valley Ranch, appealed its $256,178 water connection charge, claiming that district water-use average that was used to calculate the fee was "inequitable." Water connection fees are based on an applicant's projected average water use.

Chandler said that the usage was based on maximum capacity for busy restaurants and bars such as the Sardine Factory on Cannery Row. Since the lodge would not be soliciting customers from outside the resort, there would be fewer customers in both the restaurant and bar, Chandler claimed. The resort status made it eligible for a "special circumstances" designation, Chandler added.

He presented the board with water usage figures Landmark Land considered valid and requested the the connection charge be adjusted to $140,538. District staff recommended that Landmark Land be charged the reduced fee and that the water usage be reviewed in two years. If water usage then was greater than estimated by Landmark, the developers would pay the balance of the fee.

Directors Karin Strasser Kauffman and John Williams objected to the plan, saying they did not feel the lodge was eligible for "special circumstances" designation. Strasser Kauffman said with that broad of a criteria for "special circumstances," any business or resident could claim the special status.

However, Director Nick Lombardo made a motion that turned the proposal around. Landmark would pay the entire $256,178 fee, but the resort's water usage would be reviewed in two years.

If the usage was less than the district estimated, the connection fee would be readjusted and the overcharge would be refunded. Lombardo said he did not believe anyone should be overcharged.

Director Pat Bernardi seconded the motion and told the board that she also felt "if you overcharge someone and they can prove it," they deserve a refund.

Lombardo's motion was approved by the board with Strasser Kauffman and Williams voting against.

•

AN ORDINANCE to waive water connection fees for low- and moderate-income housing was also presented to the board during the meeting.

Ordinance 25, proposed by Strasser Kauffman, exempts payment of water connection fees on dwelling units for purchase or rent that people within the low- and moderate-income range can afford.

The ordinance was designed to help promote such housing in the area, Heuer said, and was a part of Strasser Kauffman's — who is also a Monterey County supervisor — quest to encourage its construction.

Richard Pryor, a Carmel Valley resident and developer of a proposed 132-unit moderate-income housing development in Carmel Valley called Holt Ranch, told the board that peninsula agencies have not provided enough incentives for the construction of affordable homes. Without incentives, construction of these units has "not been significant."

Pryor also suggested adding conditions to the exemption that the units be built with water-saving fixtures and utilize low-water maintenance landscaping.

The board voted unanimously to include Pryor's suggestions in the ordinance, which will come back to the board at its July meeting.

CARMEL VOICE

BY SAM SALERNO

Mel-low tones

That was quite a concert at Sherwood Hall in Salinas the other night performed by Mel Torme. It's not too often that this area is treated to such a talent. Mel runs the vocal gamut from jazz and pop tunes to show tunes and is one of the innovators of "scat" singing which is synonymous with Ella Fitzgerald and Sarah Vauhgn. Once known as "The Velvet Fog," Torme, who receives residuals for his composition, "The Christmas Song," has been a favorite for years and once led a group known as the "Mel-tones." They also recorded with the Artie Shaw Band. One of his hottest albums to date is the one called "An Evening With George Shearing and Mel Torme," presented by Paul Masson Vineyards and Concord Records. At the Salinas concert, Torme was assisted musically by jazz greats Buddy De Franco, clarinetist, and Terry Gibbs, vibist, whom we last saw at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas.

HOORAY FOR JULI

Even before her victory in the McDonald's LPGA Championship, Juli Inkster had her sights set on The Hershey Country Club Course. Juli, from Santa Cruz said, "The course requires every club in the bag." She should know...she's the defending champion and will be playing there this week. Inkster's tribute, the highest a golfer can give to a course, is echoed by many LPGA players. Juli has won twice this year and has been a regular in the Spalding Pro-Am, played here the first week in January.

Speaking of golf, Oklahoma State has produced some great golfers. Not only has Bob Tway (from that school) won twice this year but hot on his heels is a former teammate at the school, Willie Wood, runner-up to Bob last week at Westchester. Following the U. S. Open this week, Scott Verplank, amateur golfer of the year, also from Oklahoma State, takes on the pros as he dons his professional garb. Lee Trevino and all who have played with Scott feel he is the heir apparent to the crown held by Jack Nicklaus. Remember, they've been saying that about a lot of newcomers on the tour only to have them sour after a few seasons. Time will tell.

FROM PLANT MANAGER TO SALES

Brian George of Bayshore Press in Santa Cruz, now making the sales rounds in Carmel. No, Brian hasn't given up the shop, he's just getting out and servicing a few accounts about town. He's a knowledgeable printer and now is getting his feet wet in sales. He'll devote a couple of days a week. He formerly was employed at Color-Ad in Monterey. See you on the streets, Brian!

NAME THE FIVE STATES

Do you know which five states will elect our Congress in the year 2000? According to Carl Eller, executive of Circle K stores, it'll be Texas, Arizona, Florida, California, and North Carolina. Eller made this statement during a recent meeting of the Hawaiian Executive Council and he based his conclusions on population growth in the aforementioned states. What do you think?

HERE AND THERE

If you're in the neighborhood, stop in for an afternoon snack and a cocktail at the Tinnery in Pacific Grove. The vivacious bartender is Peggy Fuerst who left the slopes of Tahoe to make this area her new home. She's into all outdoor sports and has the tan to prove it. Stop by.

Russ Harris of the Golden Fork in Carmel, hosting Hertz and Ford executives. Russ gets the best clientele at the Fork.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

One of the participants at a recent golf clinic at Pebble Beach answers to the name of Ling Mei Wang...and not a bad player, either!

Can you guess the most asked question in Carmel? If you check with any shop owner, the question is: "Where's the Hog's Breath?"

CONGRATULATIONS

To Charlie and Kitzie Thomas, owners of the Houston Rockets who have a second home in Pebble Beach. Their Rockets came a long way this year as a runner-up to the Boston Celtics. The Houston team is a year or two away from being a super team. The biggest disappointment was Ralph Sampson, who didn't perform up to his capabilities, especially in the final game. During the off season, the Rockets will be looking for some guard help...a guard who can be a playmaker. Nevertheless, it was a sensational year for a team not predicted to go as far as it did.

COULDN'T HAPPEN TO A BETTER GUY

Martin Moss, bar manager of Poppy Hills Restaurant and Bar is the guy. Martin has done it all, from bar manager of the Butcher Shop to running his own restaurant on Maui and now to Poppy Hills. Understand that John Snopknowski is working there and so is Brad Langely, son of Jim Langely, pro at Cypress Point. I am a believer in hiring local talent and not importing all the so-called talent from out of state and out of this area. We have enough talented people here to get all the jobs done.

Sandra Locke, who loves my pasta, gave a good performance in "The Rosemary Clooney Story" recently on television. Come-On-My-House, kid, I'll give you some pasta!

Final games on tap

SATURDAY, JUNE 14, will mark the last day of regular season play for the Bronco, Mustang and Pinto divisions. Games start at 9:30 a.m., Closing Day Ceremonies are at 3 p.m. Don't miss this last opportunity to see some great games with terrific kids!

Current Bronco standings: Pine Inn, 11-2; Derek Rayne, 10-3; La Playa, 3-10; Carmel Valley Disposal, 2-11.

Derek Rayne defeated Pine Inn in a 7-6 nail-biter on June 2. Despite fine hitting by Pine Inn's Travis Smith, Clas Brown and Mario Bertolucci (including Smith's solo homer in the top of the seventh to tie the game), Derek Rayne broke their opponents' 10-game winning streak to win the game. Lee Walton led the hitting for Derek Rayne; teammate Alex Fremier sparkled at second base.

La Play beat Carmel Valley Disposal 17-16 on June 3 in a game featuring multiple hits by the victors' Bain Smith, Dennis Sketchley, Matt Travaille, Andrew Wilson and Adam Conway. Leading the hitting for CVD were All-Star candidates Chad Christensen, Sky Feekes and Brooks Juhring. Ground-rule doubles were hit by Juhring and La Playa's Willie Moore.

In Pine Inn's 10-2 win over CVD on June 7, Juhring cracked his third home run of the season; teammate Feekes hit a ground-rule double. Clas Brown, Mark Brophy and Mario Bertolucci led the hitting for Pine Inn; key hits were also made by CVD's Zack Herington and the Pine Inn's Erik Schnackenberg and Ranon Masliyah. Second baseman David Palshaw turned in a fine defensive performance.

Derek Rayne beat La Playa 9-4 on June 7. Lee Walton led the winners' hitting, with other fine hits by teammates Steve Biliouris, Frank Melicia, Abram DeAnda and Alex Fremier. Jon Bohlman, Adam Conway, Sean O'Rourke and Andrew Wilson hit well for La Playa.

Mustang Division news: Dick Bruhn beat County Mounties in a close game June 2. Despite a four-run rally in the last inning, County Mounties came up one run short for a final score of 13-12. Christopher Watkins (4-for-4), Steven Garrett and Casey Christensen led the hitting for Dick Bruhn; Greg Mayer (2-for-3) was the leading hitter for the Mounties.

On June 5, Yates, Downer beat Books, Inc., 18-5. Cooper Scollan went 2-for-2 with a double for the winners; teammate Chris Morgan also hit a double. Robbie Koontz led the hitting for Books, Inc., while Yates, Downer's Toby Lauterback made a strong defensive showing.

County Mounties beat Yates, Downer 12-6 on June 7. Jim Rice, Justin Koppel and Ben Thompson were County Mounties' leading hitters; Cooper Scollan and Toby Lauterbach led Yates, Downer's hitting. Catcher Jesse Houston showed skill at the plate for the winners.

In Minor Softball action, Carmel Phillies lost to the P.G. Monarchs on May 31, 13-7.

BUSINESS BEAT
BY NANCY HILLS

Real short

THIS week's column is short — in the extreme. Just remember, no news is good news, right?

BITS AND PIECES

I've been asked if anyone bought the Varsity Shop next door to Laub's Country Store. No, owner Bill Brady — for 33 years — said he just gave it a facelift and it still carries the same T-shirts and sweatshirts it had before.

• Pernie's dress shop on San Carlos Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues is in the process of changing owners. New owner will be Christine Johnson, the former owner of Dynasty Fashions in the Paradise Mall on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street. She sold that to Jia Hsih and Shio Hui Hwang.

• Cosmetologist Heidi Eggeman has set up shop in Erika Petit's Headliner salon near the corner of San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue. Donna De Martini, also a cosmetologist, has started at the Mane Attraction in the Sunset Terrace on Eighth Avenue near Mission Street. Both survived the Business License and Code Review Board.

WRITING ABOUT WRITERS

It's a little intimidating writing about a business whose business is writing.

Collins, Adler & Associates is a new publisher's service operation in Carmel offering writing, editing, word processing, typesetting and photostating, individually or as a package.

"We do everything, only we don't publish," explained Dean Collins, president of Collins, Adler & Associates. He started the company with Linda Adler, company vice president.

They do everything — including running between two locations. The business has administrative offices in the Patterson Building on Sixth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln streets and a production office near the corner of Junipero and Fifth avenues.

When most people (meaning myself, mainly) think of publishing or writing, they think of books, magazines and newspapers. They forget that any printed information has been written, proofed, typeset, laid out and, hopefully, edited.

That includes those nifty standardized tests (remember them?) we all looked forward to so much in school. Well, the majority of Collins, Adler and Associates customers are in an area of specialty testing, Collins explained.

At this time, they're developing reading tests for Scribner and are working on other testing projects for McGraw-Hill-CTB. For these projects, Collins explained, they are "doing it all."

Tests are only one aspect of their business, he added. While all the service will not be available to the general public yet, they hope to be ready to take on walk-in clientele and other projects next month.

PRETTY THINGS

Customers of Marielle's salon in The Barnyard could be surprised if they haven't been there for awhile.

Owner Marielle Faita has expanded her business into the adjoining shop and added a lingerie department. The expansion, she said, includes a complete remodel of her full-service salon.

Almost all the lingerie originates in Europe — mainly in Belgium — and ranges from fine silks to fine cottons, Faita said. There are also special antiques for gifts available for purchase, she said.

Lingerie only takes up the front portion of the shop. Faita explained that the massage services, including reflexology, by Susan Haycock, now have a special place of their own in the back of the new section.

Faita has owned the salon for six years, she said, and offers hair styling, facials, make-up and massage.

SMASHED GLASS

Walking along Fifth Avenue (in Carmel) I encountered a great deal of glass lying around the sidewalk near the post office. I found I had barged right past a barrier put up by workmen, so it was my own fault. However, it was one way to notice that Greg Celliti had started putting in new open air windows in Friar Tuck's. Of course, Michael Gardner had mentioned it to me before, but who listens?

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Joan De Mers, Carmel Busines Association president, has announced that the CBA will be conducting a door-to-door membership drive from June 12 through June 19.

Members of the CBA will be going from business to business in order to contact current members and non-members and to explain the CBA goals and ways it will be working with the city.

"We're asking non-members to join so they can be a part of the solutions to the city problems," De Mers said.

Non-active members of the CBA will be brought up to date on its activities and encouraged to participate in CBA functions.

FOR YOUR CALENDAR

Gary Morais, M.A., a local psychotherapist, author and business consultant will give a free one-half day presentation on Personnel Performance Systems at 8 a.m. to noon, Friday, June 20 in the Conference Room at the Carmel Mission Inn (Highway 1 and Rio Road.)

The presentation will be an introduction to Morais' program of personnel selection, which he writes, "is designed to help companies generate optimum productivity from each of their employees."

Top student

CARMEL HIGH School senior Geordie Humphrey, who will graduate June 13, has been chosen Student of the Month for June by the science department. This is Humphrey's first year at Carmel High. Last year he was in school in Holland, where his physician father was practicing medicine. He is interested in science, particularly in wildlife, and is considering a career in that field. An active member of the Nuclear Awareness Campaign on campus, he is deeply interested in conservation and the threat of nuclear war. He was honored for scholastic excellence at the recent Rotary Top 100 Dinner — which recognized the top scholars in each of the four classes. Extra-curricular interests include playing soccer, camping, canoeing, hiking and climbing. He reads a lot — mostly science fiction — and enjoys role-playing games such as Dungeons and Dragons. His hobby is photography.

Just rappin'

LISA MORRIS of Carmel High School with the assistance of fellow student Jeff Ryan recently put together a public service announcement aired on KDON radio. The PSA, set to rap music, focused on the need to use seat belts. (Michael Gardner photo.)

New diagnostic device available

Magnetic resonance imaging, the latest advance in medical diagnosis, is now available to patients of Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital.

The two hospitals will jointly lease the equipment which provides sharp, detailed images of body tissues without use of X-rays or invasive techniques.

Housed in a 53-by-12-foot van, the mobile magnetic resonance imager initially will serve patients two days a week in Salinas and two in Monterey.

The lease agreement between the two hospitals and Alliance Imaging of Los Angeles enables both facilities to try the new technology before either commits to purcahse the $2.5 million unit.

In Monterey, the equipment will be stationed at the Community Hospital Recovery Center, 576 Hartnell St., Mondays and Thursdays, rather than at Community Hospital because of electrical power requirements.

At both hospitals, there will be an MRI support trailer with receptionist, patient waiting area, dressing rooms, film processor and radiologist's reading room.

The device produces its images when a magnetic field is generated which disturbs the hydrogen atoms in the body. When atoms return to normal energy levels, they give off a small radio signal which can be measured and, with the help of computer, translated into a picture of the body.

Areas where the equipment will be especially useful are for brain and spinal cord imaging, detection of tumors in the chest, evaluation of the thoracic aorta and possibly heart scans, detection of pelvic malignancies and a variety of musculoskeletal applications.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

About 20 percent of older Americans, some 5 million people over age 65, report that they have trouble seeing. Four percent of seniors can't see well enough to read a newspaper. The New York Association for the Blind, better known as The Lighthouse, recently established a new National Center for Vision and Aging. The center will promote better vision care for older Americans, provide research, training programs, and technical assistance, and serve as a clearinghouse for knowledge about the special eye problems of the elderly.

The four most serious visual difficulties of oldsters—glaucoma, cataracts, macular disease and diabetic retinopathy — now respond to new techniques of drug and laser therapy. Even in advanced cases, modern low-vision aids like closed circuit video magnifiers are helping thousands of older people to retain their sight and thus their independence. For more information, write to the Lighthouse National Center for Vision and Aging, 111 E. 59 St., New York, N.Y. 10022.

CARMEL HIGHWAY TO LOS ANGELES

Carmel will soon be on a direct highway between San Francisco and Los Angeles if everything that Senator Rigdon claims for us is true.

In a recent statement detailing the condition of various highway improvements throughout the state, Rigdon declared that the Carmel-San Simeon highway is further advanced than any of the others in California, and that bids will be called for the first section within two weeks.

This will be a great thing for Carmel and the entire coast country, because it will divert almost all pleasure motor travel from the valley roads to the beautiful drive through Carmel and the Highlands to San Simeon, where the new highway will connect with the chain of finished highways to the southland.

BUSY SESSION FOR POST OFFICE LOOMS

Carmel post office is preparing for a busy session next week, in connection with the receipt and delivery of Adjust Service Bonds for veterans of the world war. The bonds are to be mailed from San Francisco on Monday, and will arrive here probably Tuesday or Wednesday, according to Postmaster Irene Cator. The bonds may be delivered only to the person to whom they are addressed, after satisfactory identification.

It is not known definitely how many ex-servicemen in Carmel are to receive the Adjusted Service Bonds, but early this week a total of 66 of Carmel and vicinity had been fingerprinted for identification purposes at the Carmel police department.

A rival high school, Monterey, honored Carmel High School Athletic Coach, George Mosolf, Tuesday night at its annual father-sons' banquet at the county fairgrounds. He was presented with a gift from the Monterey High coaching staff by one of his former Carmel High School football players, Jason Harbert, now on the MUHS coaching staff. He was praised for his good influence on the boys and his emphasis on sportsmanship. The three hundred present gave him a standing ovation.

DROUGHT ENDANGERS CITY TREES; WATER SAVING MEASURES INSTITUTED

The Carmel Forestry Department, already curtailing its new planting program due to the drought, is anticipating serious problems with existing trees and shrubs this coming summer and fall.

"In the next month or so, we'll be at the wilting point," claims city forester Greg D'Ambrosio, explaining that this condition is characterized by no water in the subsoil.

RESIDENTS PREFER NO CHANGES AT CV AIRSTRIP IN NEW POLL

Carmel Valley residents would like to keep the Valley airstrip as it is, rather than see it developed into cluster condominiums.

That was the highest-ranked preference among Valley residents who returned a questionnaire published in the Pine Cone/Outlook to an ad hoc committee of the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee recently.

Committee members and the public le[a]ed of the survey results at the second "[t]hall" meeting to consider the proposed 110-unit Carmel Valley Airport condominium project Wednesday, June 3, at the Carmel Valley Community Center.

Seventh Annual Surfabout arrives at Carmel Beach

RIDING OFF THE lip is Todd Roberts of Carmel, who competed in last year's Surfabout. The two-day Surfabout returns to Carmel Beach, and will feature a variety of competitive events. Surfers are judged on style, maneuvers, wave selection and the overall ride. For Surfabout information, call Sunshine Freestyle Sports in Monterey, 375-5015. (Photograph courtesy Sunshine Freestyle Sports.)

SURFING STYLES and skills of many levels will be judged when Carmel Beach comes alive with the Seventh Annual Surfabout, scheduled Saturday and Sunday, June 14-15.

Virtually all the daylight hours will be put to use as competition begins at 6:30 a.m. both days and continues until dusk. Spectators are encouraged to attend the Surfabout (use beach stairways, please!) and pit their surf judging skills against the pros.

Entry in the seventh Surfabout remains open to Monterey County residents only. Sign-ups will be accepted until 6 p.m. Thursday, June 12. Entry fee is $10 which includes T-shirt. To sign up, visit Sunshine Freestyle Sports, 443 Lighthouse Ave. in Monterey.

Surfing events are scheduled for boys ages 12 to 14, juniors ages 15 to 17, men ages 18 to 24, masters ages 25 to 35 and grand masters, 35 and older. Also planned are women's longboard and shortboard surfing events, men's longboard surfing, kneeboarding, sailboard races, skimboarding and two levels of boogie boarding.

A noteworthy spectator event is the team paddling relay race. The surfboard is handed off as a baton from one surfer to the next as four-member teams paddle out through the surf and around a buoy beyond the breakers. Heading for the beach, team members may ride a wave or paddle, whichever is faster. The surfer then runs down the beach to the next group, where he/she hands off to the next team member.

Another traditional event is the Dick Cross Memorial distance paddling race. In 1985 for the fourth consecutive year it was won by Marc Cross of Carmel.

The distance paddling race is an endurance event open to all ages. The race starts against the cliffs at the south end of the beach. The paddlers continue around the first buoy and then turn north along the beach, travel around a designated rock, back down the beach, around the buoy and the race ends when each paddler tags the judges' stand.

The trophy is named for Dick Cross, a waterman who was lost at sea while surfing huge waves in Hawaii. His nephew, Marc, won the race three years in a row, finally to be beaten in 1983 by Carmel's Robin Jeffers. Mike Bauer of Pacific Grove won the race in 1984, and Marc Cross paddled to reclaim the title last year.

Visitors and participants in the Seventh Annual Surfabout are advised to use stairways to avoid erosion of the banks along Carmel Beach. There is a $500 fine for standing on the banks.

Everyone is encouraged to park away from Scenic Road to keep traffic running smoothly.

The Surfabout awards presentation and dance will begin at 9 p.m. Sunday. Tickets must be purchased in advance at Sunshine Freestyle Sports in Monterey.

A sailboard race will place 3 p.m. Friday, June 13 off Monterey Beach. A sailors' prerace meeting is planned for 2:30 p.m. sharp. The race will consist of three individual races.

For details on the Seventh Annual Surfabout, contact Sunshine Freestyle Sports at 375-5015.

Sprints herald summer at Laguna Seca Raceway

RACING CHAMPIONS and their fans will converge on Laguna Seca Raceway during the annual Monterey Summer Sprints, set Saturday and Sunday, June 14-15.

The weekend will feature the West Coast Atlantic Racing (WCAR) Series, the VW Cup Championship Series and a full Sports Car Club of America Divisional Championship sports car racing program.

This is the second year the Formula Atlantic cars have been the feature of the early summer weekend. The series, utilizing open-wheel, single-seat cars resembling Indianapolis 500 racers, has always been a training ground for young drivers on their way to racing's major leagues.

The series uses regulations which control the configuration of the cars through tight restrictions, placing the emphasis for success on driving ability.

The cars check in at 1,050 pounds and are powered by 1600cc dual overhead cam Ford-Cosworth engines. The cars reach speeds of nearly 140 miles per hour in the fastest sections of Laguna Seca's twisting 1.9-mile, nine-turn circuit.

A unique feature of the WCAR Series is that it is contested in a pair of heat races, with the results tabulated on the Olympic scoring system. In the case of a tie, the second heat finish settles the issue. Thus a 2-1 record would top a 1-2 effort.

Another unique part of the Formula Atlantic show is the start. The Atlantics are one of the few remaining racing divisions which use standing starts. The "drag race" to the first corner by a 25 to 35-car starting field is often quite exciting.

In contrast to the WCAR Series, the VW Cup cars, which are all Volkswagen Golf sedans, are making their first appearance at Laguna Seca. Many of the drivers will likewise be trying this hilly course for the first time.

The 20 classes which make up the SCCA, San Francisco Region's Divisional Championship are bunched into half a dozen racing groups. Thus, while there is always the chase for overall honors, there are in five of the six groups races for individual class honors going on throughout the pack. The novice fan can tell the different classes by the number and letter combinations on the cars.

ARTS & LEISURE

The drivers in all these classes, although amateurs, have years of experience. They are vying for points to qualify them from the Nor-Pac Division of the Sports Car Club of America into the SCCA's National Championships, to be run in the fall.

Saturday's schedule, which will begin at 8:30 a.m., will be reserved for qualifying for starting positions in Sunday's all-main-event show. The Atlantic cars will qualify at 3 p.m.

Warm-ups for all classes will get underway Sunday at 8:30 a.m. The first race group will take the green flag at 9:25 a.m. The VW Cup main event, a half-hour sprint, will start at 11:40 a.m. The two WCAR heat races will start at 1:10 and 3:20 p.m. and they will last 25 minutes each.

The Saturday-Sunday combination ticket for the Summer Sprints is $15 and includes admission, paddock access and unreserved seating in the grandstand area along the start-finish straight. Sunday's admission, with the same privileges, is $12.

The net proceeds from the races produced by SCRAMP go to area charities. SCRAMP, celebrating its 29th anniversary this season, has donated $2.72 million to area charities.

Tickets can be purchased at the gate or in advance through BASS or Ticketron outlets. For more information, call 373-1811.

News notes:

No more fires on beach slopes

THE CARMEL City Council has unanimously declared that fires will no longer be allowed on the slopes of Carmel Beach.

A story in last week's edition may have misled readers into thinking that fires are banned only after 10 p.m.

Council action June 3 was to prohibit all fires on the beach banks. Fires are still allowed on the flat area of the beach until 10 p.m.

The council also has banned alcohol from the beach between the hours of 10 p.m. and 7 a.m.

And, fireworks will not be allowed on the beach this July Fourth, the council ruled.

Inn out, condo project stalled by supervisors

DEVELOPMENT interests appear to have been delivered a one-two punch by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

Supervisors unanimously rejected a proposed hotel at the mouth of Carmel Valley and also indicated support of a proposed Carmel Area Land Use Amendment to cut in half the density for the Mahroom condominium complex.

There were three key reasons behind the denial of the proposed 58-unit Carmel Rancho Inn just off Rio Road across from the Crossroads.

According to Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, the court-ordered moratorium on discretionary use permits in Carmel Valley was a predominant factor in the denial.

Additionally, the project would be an intensification of use and traffic generated by the inn could create gridlock at the mouth of the Valley, she believes.

In a separate matter, supervisors spent several hours on a proposed land use plan amendment to cut the density of the Mahroom subdivision from 36 to 18. The property is in the High Meadow area east of Highway 1 and south of Outlook Drive.

Supervisors, after receiving numerous new reports from the applicants, continued the issue for three weeks to give themselves and staff time for a complete analysis.

However, indications are that supervisors will side with the neighbors who are asking for the cut in density.

"Even 18 may be too high," Strasser Kauffman said.

Lottery funds top board agenda

HOW TO spend about $547,000 in lottery money, whether to hire River School Principal Rosemary Montgomery as a central office administrator and a pair of Project 2000 proposals are issues before the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education Tuesday, June 17.

Trustees will meet at 7 p.m. in the Carmel Middle School library.

Supt. Robert Infelise is expected to present a recommendation on how to budget about $547,000 in lottery funds, including approximately $187,000 in carryover monies from 1986-87.

Although final figures still are to be worked out, Infelise anticipates a recommendation to spend the funds on a new school bus, district library improvements and other ongoing expenditures.

In another matter, Infelise will ask trustees to approve hiring Montgomery as the director of curriculum and instruction.

If approved, the promotion will mean another River School principal will have to be hired. Earlier last month Infelise proposed to move Middle School Vice Principal Karl Pallastrini into Montgomery's position.

However, Pallastrini is now one of the front-runners for middle school principal since Frank Lynch recently resigned.

Two separate committees of staff and parents will meet next week to discuss filling the River School and Middle School principal positions if Montgomery is promoted.

The new principals are expected to be hired from within the district.

In another matter, the Project 2000 task force headed by Pallastrini will present a series of proposals to the board.

The task force will ask that trustees write the Carmel City Council endorsing a plan to add after-school activities at the middle school to its recreation program. Currently the city offers recreation programs just at River School.

An alternative education program called "Wise Wish" also will be recommended by the task force.

The program calls for a core program for those ninth graders not yet ready for the normal high school curriculum.

Karas to hold Citizens' Forum

Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas has announced that he will hold a Citizens' Forum at the Pacific Grove Community Center, 515 Junipero Ave., Pacific Grove. The Citizens' Forum will take place from 7:30-9:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 12.

Karas plans to open the meeting with general remarks regarding Monterey County. A general question and answer period will follow, with individual discussions scheduled from about 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The meeting is open to the public.

"I want to take every opportunity I can to keep in touch with constituents," Karas said. "Conducting a Citizens' Forum such as this is the best way I know to let people know about county government and to learn what residents expect from me as their supervisor."

On-air ambiance generated by three 'Citizens Kane'

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THREE CITIZENS KANE will take to the KAZU airwaves Saturday, broadcasting an inter-generational music feast that could include tributes to Al Jolson or the Beatles. It's still too early to tell.

No ordinary installment of Chicken McMusic will this be. The show, broadcast 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. each Saturday, is already a free-form entity.

"My real joy in being on the radio is turning people on to the stuff they never heard before. I play the obscure cuts off albums," explained Steven (Citizen) Kane, the show's regular host. But for the Saturday, June 14 installment, Kane has flown his parents out from New York City for a sort of radio warm-up to Father's Day.

"I want to acknowledge the contributions they gave to me," explained Kane from the Carmel Rancho offices of his "real job" as ad salesman for radio station KRML. "I grew up in a very musical neighborhood — the Bronx, where Bobby Darrin, Stan Getz and Dion and the Belmonts grew up. We were the first family on the block to have a hi-fi in the '50s. The love of music I grew up with in that house was tremendous."

Kane's parents, Sy and Min (short for Minerva) still reside in the Bronx and still love music. According to their son, Min works for the utility company, Con Ed, and Sy is a retired New York City cab driver who is now in sales.

"My father's friend was a DJ in a record store in Harlem, and that man turned him on to different artists that a middle class white man never would know otherwise," Kane recalled. It is his hope that his parents will share on-air some of the eclectic knowledge and musical anecdotes they've collected over the decades.

"I've been listening to music since I was about 15 years old," Sy said. "My heart lies in jazz but my mind has been broadened to an extent by rock 'n' roll and R & B. I developed a liking for some of the other music that's come along but my serious listening has always been with jazz.

"I think it's a free-form type of music that lends itself toward improvisation and creativity. I admire anyone who can stand before an audience without any sheet music and really make it sound beautiful."

Kane said that during his weekly show on KAZU (90.3 FM) he plays his own albums but also takes listeners' requests. Like the musical appreciation he gained in New York, each show evolves on its own.

"Jazz, rock, folk, country, blues, soul, comedy — I'll play anything," he said. "A couple of weeks ago the show started off with Woody Guthrie, then went into Arlo Guthrie, then into jazz and rock 'n' roll. And it all flowed. There's no way you can be taught that. It's a gift that my parents gave me."

Of his mother, Min, Kane said, "The first thing she does in the morning is turn on the radio."

"I kind of sided with popular music," Min pointed out. "I grew up with Frank Sinatra as my idol — this is going back to the '40s. I remember when he appeared at the New York Paramount I was walking in and not looking where I was going and I bumped into him. He touched my face and I was just thrilled. I didn't wash my face for a week. I was walking on Cloud 9. We still go to see him in New York."

As the son of Min and Sy, Kane is a blend of their musical loves. He gained his father's lov of jazz, and his mother's preference for performers who are less easy to categorize, like Nat King Cole.

Said Min, "At first Nat King Cole had a trio and he played the piano. There was a guitarist with him and a bass player, then later he branched out as a singer. He was the kind of a man you never read a thing about as far as any blemishes. You never heard any gossip."

"When Steve was young, he had his Elvis Presley, his Bo Diddley, his B.B. King. He wanted no part at all of jazz," Sy added. "The years went by and he started to develop a liking for what he heard. It was kind of a meeting of the minds. I taught him how to listen, and that's what it's all about. He sure learned a lot. Now I'm proud to say that Steve has taught me a lot. I guess it was like a matter of Steve and I sort of feeding off each other."

As a cab driver in New York Sy kept an autograph book which was signed by such celebrity riders as Carmen McRae and Elizabeth Taylor.

But his "biggest thrill" took place when he spotted jazz pianist George Shearing struggling with his guide dog in the busy Manhattan traffic.

Sy recalled, "This guy was like one of my idols and he still is. He was crossing Fifth Avenue with his dog and the dog was leading him into traffic. I panicked, jumped off my seat and caught up to him and helped him to the sidewalk. Then when it quieted down I told him what an admirer I was and asked him for his autograph. He carried a thing on his belt and punched out his autograph in Braille."

Steve Kane admitted that in his teens the usual musical culture clash took place. He rejected the songs of Eddie Fisher in favor of Fats Domino and others of the new generation.

"My parents have no use for rock 'n' roll. We have gone to many jazz concerts together, including Paul Masson Company's summer series in Saratoga," he said.

Radio-wise, Kane is an alumnus of the now defunct KFAT, where in his Citizen Kane guise he did a news telecast, and he also broadcast an oldies show over public-supported radio station KUSP in Santa Cruz. There he presided over Heartbreak Hotel, where the desk clerk was one Citizen Kane.

Kane said he looks forward to the chance to offer listeners an idea of what it's like growing up in a one hi-fi family of music buffs.

"This is my chance to thank my father and have a cross-generational jam session on the radio," he noted. "But my mother is just as much a part of this."

For his part in all this, Sy Kane quipped, "I don't know what anybody else is gonna do, but I'm gonna read the addresses from my black book."

THEATER REVIEW
BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

'Talking With' at GroveMont

AT THE GROVEMONT Theater Arts Center, the festival of women's plays took off last weekend with a tidy production of Talking With, a series of 11 solo flights of communication featuring an all-women cast.

Written by Jane Martin and co-directed by Ramie Wikdahl and Rosamond Goodrich, Talking With is a prize-winner that communicates, through the idiosyncracies of its characters, incisive observations on current American life. In front of a simple backstage setting, one actress after another steps forward to talk with the audience, sharing, in the main, the truth about herself or at least what matters most to her.

Stringing monologues together this way is a daring device, requiring 11 performers who can hold the stage alone and surmount the built-in fatigue factor for the audience of listening to apparently unconnected monologues without a story line. But for the most part Talking With works very well. The range of character and conveyed experience is highly varied. Almost every actress turns in an expert performance, and the production as a whole is smoothly and coherently directed.

The characters include a housewife (Sandy Williams in patchwork clothes and screaming orange Reeboks) so stultified by her dead marriage and suburban life that she escapes routinely to Oz, where she assumes the identity of Patches, "a doll made by a magician to be his servant, but someone dropped a bunch of cleverness onto her body." Williams' performance is funny in a Chaplinesque way, building humor out of pain and fear, both of which she conveys palpably.

Kirsten Lovell's "Clear Glass Marbles" paints a portrait of a woman of strong character who takes charge of her dying process with all the conviction she apparently applied to life. Lovell's own character depicts the legacy of her mother implicitly, in one of Talking With's more powerful monologues. Mindy Stock Detro's "Handler" is a skillful portrayal of a vanishing type — the religious snake handler — with a strong subtext on the formative importance of father-daughter relationships.

Victoria Johnson's "Rodeo" is a scathing commentary on the packaging of experience for profit and the passing away of participation in favor of spectatorship. ("There's a bunch of a---s who sneak around and see you having fun," she confides angrily. "Then they buy the fun and want to charge you money to watch it.") Johnson's crackling, lively diatribe on the evils of corporate rodeo is worth the price of admission all by itself.

Equally incisive yet good humored, Robin H. Jarrell's "French Fries" takes the MacDonald's fantasy to the limit. ("God gave us the idea of plastic so we'd know what the everlasting really was. It's God's hint.") Jarrell's engagingly southern-accented scrubwoman is a comic gem from the moment she sets mop onstage.

Julie A. Hughett, as a baton twirler alight with the magic of "blue collar zen," pulls off a challenging and difficult piece of material, sharing the transcendental experience of being an expert twirler and proving it by walking a very fine line between comedy and pathos. And Naomi Golden, as an aging woman obsessed with the qualities and patterns of light and darkness, comments sharply on the plastic senior citizens' culture of planned communities where no one has a friend they knew before they were 60. Social amnesia, she calls it.

In this collection of strong monologues, only Mary Rigmaiden's "Audition" falls flat. In this opening piece, designed to build tension, Rigmaiden lacks sufficient emotional intensity to bring out the menacing quality of this kinky opening piece.

Although Talking With's characters and material are wildly diverse, the 11 are woven together by the common need not only to communicate but to connect, and this is perhaps the playwright's most incisive observation. In a world of borrowed experience, social amnesia, and everlasting plastic, people's greatest yearning is simply to touch each other.

ON STAGE

American Buffalo

American Buffalo, David Mamet's social drama about post-Vietnam, post-Watergate America, begins Thursday, June 12 in the Monterey Peninsula College SRO Theatre. Directed by Conrad Selvig, the play depicts a society plagued by decay, violence, fear and anxiety. American Buffalo won the New York Drama Critics' Award. Praised by some critics for the skill with which he portrayed American low life, largely through the language of the streets, Mamet was attacked by others for much the same reason. Because of its strong language, the play may not be suitable for all audiences, and parental discretion is advised.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday. The theater is at 980 Fremont Blvd., Monterey. Tickets are $4. For reservations, call the box office from 4 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays at 646-4213.

•

California's First Theatre, the oldest theater in the state, is the setting for this circa 1860 melodrama involving murder and a marriage of convenience.

Tickets are $8.50 Fridays and Saturdays, $7.50 Sundays through Thursdays and matinees. The Western Stage is headquartered at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. ART NOTES
BY SAM COLBURN

Art on impulse

THE IMPULSE TO draw and paint lies just below the surface. In 1932 I had emerged from the University of Southern California with a B.A. in geology. This was during the Great Depression, but I had an income from my father's estate which enabled me to travel in Europe as the cost of living over there was very low.

As I visited museums of art, I decided that I was not going to be a Big Rock Man from Boulder. I had started my study of geology at the University of Colorado. Arriving at the Puerto de Pollensa on the island of Mallorca, I began to sketch. The living was easy. I had a nice room in a hotel and three meals a day for 56 cents. There were artists and writers in the town, and even a German jazz band. We celebrated the arrival of 1933 at the local bar to their music.

I went from Mallorca to Seville (by boat of course), and met artists there. Going North I stayed in Madrid and visited El Prado, and also went to Toledo where I was very impressed with the painting of El Greco. It is Hemingway's theory that his very practiced elongations of form were caused by astigmatism, but there are portraits where this distortion is not evident. It is my feeling that El Greco was very involved with religion, and that he achieved a spirituality through this way of painting.

•

GETTING BACK to the local scene there is a showing of oil paintings by Carl Bowman at the Seaside City Hall. He started spreading paint around many years ago under the tutelage of Alice B. Chittenden and E. Spencer Macky at the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco. Carl shared a show with Bill Hestal at the very fine East-West Gallery in the City, He was, at the time, still in high school.

Bowman stopped painting for a number of years as he was involved with the wholesale supply of plumbing materials, but got his brush going again in 1976.

This is a big show of portraits, figures studies, landscapes, and seascapes. He obviously has always considered the picture plane as a plastic whole. This means, according to Cezanne, that if you painted a perfect picture then changed one part you would have to change the entire painting.

There are a number of good portraits like the one of Janet de la Roche. The man with the bald head, ruddy face and white mustache is not me. His Vidor Ranch I is quite different in style from the other paintings. His Vidor Ranch II was accepted for the 1986 competetive by juror Fred Martin.

The paintings of Carl Bowman have Form and Feeling. His structure is within the picture area. This concept has been challenged in recent years by artists who present "a slice out of the whole" so to speak. It is like you paint a picture of part of a road but the insinuation is that it goes on.

This exhibit will be on view through June 30. The City Hall in Seaside has the finest wall space for the showing of art work of any such municipal building that I have seen, and the city has throughout the years made very good use of it.

THERE IS A QUOTE about the man "who jumped on his horse and rode off in all directions" which is perfectly descriptive of contemporary art. Indeed, Site 311 on Forest Avenue in Pacific Grove is offering "A Survey of Contemporary California Artists" which demonstrates this point. The works of 16 artists are completely varied — paintings, sculpture, photography, kinetic sculpture. John Babcock has a piece called "Nights Journey" which is made of pre-cast paper. The shape is good, and the colors rich and subtle. "Spirit Sails" by Barbara Chover is a piece that might be called wall sculpture. It is delicate and gives the feeling implied in the title. A happy departure from usual photography is shown in Laurie Brown's Cibachrome prints. Richard Duning has used a photograph in "3 boxes, 10-21-82" as a center for a work in which he makes a play in paint on the subject matter in the photo. It holds together very well,

One possibility in sculpture which I have not seen explored too much is moving parts. Oh yes, we have had Alexander Calder and his mobiles and a few other adventures in variegated space. Mathew Gil has two pieces of kinetic sculpture that offer changing patterns of shapes. It is an exercise in relativity, and much more fun than planets moving around suns. This exhibit will be shown through July 15.

OVER AT the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Shari Lamanet has a show in the Coburn Gallery. I don't know if you call them paintings or drawings, and indeed what difference does it make? They have a strong graphic impact achieved by a dramatic association of unrelated subject matter. I realize that this is only true in a literal sense as indeed all her forms are very much a part of our urban society. What she is presenting is a kind of chaos, but the works are structured so that they hold together, and indeed our cities, by some miracle of human gravity, do just that.

I have just returned from a trip across the "wide, open spaces," I am very happy that they are still there. It reminds me of a party at the Carmel Art Association several years ago. It was a real "screamer." One Wallace Doolittle said to me at the time, "I just want to be out on the high desert, on top of a hill, looking out and not seeing a damn thing, 'cept maybe a buzzard."

LEAVES AND LOG, Coos Bay, Ore., is a high-resolution black and white image by Richard Garrod. Garrod will share some techniques of effective printing during a three-day workshop offered by Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops. For sign-up information, call 624-6870.

Masterful printing taught during photographic weekend

'PRINTING FORMULAS of the Masters" will be explored during a three-day photography workshop taught by Richard Garrod, Friday through Sunday, June 13-15.

Offered by Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops, the workshop is designed for those who are ready to expand and refine their darkroom techniques.

Not only will participants gain experience in producing prints with appropriate tonal values, luminosity, and rich print color, the students will be instructed in a variety of printing techniques, formulas, darkroom data, and other information useful in making fine prints the "masters" way.

Garrod will also share his insider's information on techniques used by master printers such as Ansel Adams, Brett Weston, Wynn Bullock and others.

Informal gatherings at Garrod's home, lunch and dinner meals offer additional time to share and learn from each other.

Fee is $85.

For further information contact Monterey Peninsula Workshops, 980 Fremont St., Monterey, 93940, or call Roger Fremier or Gail Pierce at 624-6870.

Air Force Brass Ensemble pays tribute to seniors

The brass ensemble of the Air Force Band of the Golden Gate will perform a free concert saluting senior citizens at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 12 in the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall.

The Travis Top Brass, a component of the Air Force Band, consists of five musicians who play a variety of music, ranging from classical to pop and jazz.

The event is co-sponsored by the Alliance on Aging's Senior Supportive Services and the MPC Learning Is Living Program. Reservations for the concert must be made by calling the Alliance on Aging office at 646-4636.

Performers with the Travis Top Brass include Todd Merkley, former principal trumpet of the Seattle Philharmonic and the Bach Society Orchestra of Boston. Roger Tanner has played with both jazz and classical music groups in this country and Europe.

Ellen Polachek obtained her master's degree in horn performance and has taught music. Scott Rumery played trombone in the All-American College Band for President Reagan's Inauguration.

John Manning played tuba with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra while it toured the United States and Europe.

Flamenco guitarist performs at Carmel Art Association

A FLAMENCO GUITAR recital by Guillermo Rios will be presented at the Carmel Art Association on Saturday, June 14. The program will begin at 8 p.m. followed with a wine and cheese reception for the musician.

Rios presented the same program at Carnegie Recital Hall, New York City in March during the International Guitar Festival.

In Guitar Review Rios was described as "brilliantly inventive and technically dazzling—a master performer."

He has played numerous solo concerts in the United States and in Spain and was featured in a CBS documentary. He has also been showcased in Festivales de Espana held by the Spanish government.

Tickets may be purchased at the door for $3.

Art Notes ...

in Pacific Grove, there is a cafe called Portofino. In it you will find an interesting exhibit of paintings and drawings by handicapped people. It is called "Art by Special People." Charlotte Broudy has three oils in this show. They have a dreamlike quality. Her personal imagery seems to derive from or be influenced by childhood phantasy. The work of each artist in this presentation is quite individual. My friend, George Menasco, has his own special way of "seeing." None of them show the influence of any school or trend.

Getting back to the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, I want to express my pleasure at the hanging of a Francis Mc Comas oil in the entrance foyer. This painting is on loan to the museum by Virginia Stanton. The artist was an integral part of what I call the School of Carmel. Although the subject is obviously a building, he has handled it almost as an abstraction. His use of warm color is amazing.

Sotheby's International Realty specializes in the marketing and sale of important properties, offering a service that is regarded as the most comprehensive real estate marketing program available. For each listing Sotheby's tailors a carefully designed promotional program, which includes:

1. Brochure — 4,000 lavishly produced, full-color brochures, comprehensively detailing and properly depicting the property and its features.

2. Direct Mail. The brochure is distributed on a worldwide basis to all Sotheby's offices, representatives, and 300 affiliate brokers, as well as to proprietary lists comprising an international client base and select real estate brokers and agents.

These include Sotheby's "INTERNATIONAL PREVIEW," a lovely art publication with a significant European circulation of 35,000; Sotheby's "NEWSLETTER," published 10 times a year and distributed to over 45,000 active buyers and sellers of fine art and real estate; and Sotheby's "PORTFOLIO OF DISTINCTIVE PROERTIES," an important real estate publication featuring each listing and distributed to more than 100,000 clients on the Sotheby's preferred mailing lists.
